Rain monster to rest this weekend

Gun wrestled from woman

Apparent assassination attempt

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A young woman said to be a follower of convicted murderer Charles Manson pointed a loaded pistol at President Ford today as he shook hands along a Sacramento street, but security men quickly seized her.

The President flinched away, then continued his walk to the California state capitol.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen identified the woman as Lynette Fromme, 27, said to have been one of Manson's followers.

The scene was one of some confusion, but the incident appeared to have been an assassination attempt. The President was unharmed.

The President walked close to the crowd, as he often does in his personal appearances, pausing to shake hands.

Steve Crane, a salesman who took the day off to see Ford, said, "I saw it (the gun) after they took it away from her. I just ran down here to shake his hand. I shook his hand. He shook somebody else's hand and the next thing I knew he was flinching back and away.

The Secret Service people jumped on her and twisted the gun back behind her head."

"It didn't go off," the red-turbaned woman shouted as Ford's guards seized her.

Nessen said the gun was about two feet from Ford. He said Larry Buendrof, a Secret Service agent walking behind the President, "saw the hand of a woman come up between two people in the crowd." There was a gun in the hand.

"It was established that the gun was a .45, and it was loaded," Nessen said.

A witness to the incident said she heard no click that would have indicated the woman pulled the trigger.

Another witness, Roy Miller, said that as Miss Fromme was wrestled to the ground and handcuffed she cried:

"Don't worry. It didn't go off, fellows, it didn't go off."

Others said the woman also shouted: "He is not a public servant. He is not a public servant."

Agents wrestled her to the ground, seized her weapon and handcuffed her.

A woman who witnessed the incident said that a Secret Service agent had observed the gun and grabbed the woman's hand, raising it aloft.

An agent held the gun as the woman was subdued and people in the crowd stood back.

A policeman at the scene said the woman had an automatic weapon and he believed it was loaded.

Improved job picture offset by sharp wholesale price boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 8.4 per cent unemployment rate held steady in August accompanied by an increase in the number of Americans with jobs, the government said today. But that encouraging sign in the economy was offset by another sharp increase in wholesale prices.

The Labor Department said many factories recalled workers laid off during the depths of the recession, and that total employment rose for the fifth straight month.

But the department also said wholesale prices rose .8 per cent — a .4 per cent drop from their increase in July but still a historically large jump. The largest increase was for fuels, related products and power which rose 2.9 per cent.

August figures showed an increase in employment of 275,000, meaning that 85.4 million Americans held jobs. Along with employment, the size of the labor force increased in August to 93.1 million, up by 230,000 following a rise of more than 500,000 in July.

The increase in employment occurred mostly among adult men, household heads and blue-collar workers, segments of the labor force hardest hit by the recession.

Since reaching a recession low of 83.8 million last March, employment has risen by 1.5 million, the department said.

The encouraging news in the job picture was somewhat offset by another sharp increase in wholesale prices last month.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said wholesales prices rose .8 per cent, a slower pace than the July increase of 1.2 per cent, but still high by historical standards.

The continuing surge in prices at both the wholesale and retail levels over the last two months has renewed fears of resurging inflation. However, administration economists insist that while the next few months will continue to bring high prices, the inflation rate will soon moderate.

The number of Americans without jobs in August numbered 7.8 million, unchanged from July but down 410,000 from the peak level reached in the second quarter.

Both the jobless rate and the actual number of unemployed were unchanged from July, a surprise to administration economists who were expecting a slight increase in unemployment.

Government analysts said the jobless rate would have declined last month had the drop in joblessness of adult men not been offset by an increase in teen-age unemployment.

The jobless rate for adult men dropped from 7 per cent to 6.6 per cent. The rate for adult women was little changed over the month at 7.7 per cent.

But in contrast, the jobless rate for teen-agers, which fell in July to 19.1 per cent, rose to 21.1 per cent in August.

The Labor Department reported that employment increased in nearly three-fourths of the 172 industries measured by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Kremlin complains about provision of Sinai accord

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Kremlin has complained about a provision in Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's latest Middle East accord that would place about 200 U.S. technicians in Sinai, but Kissinger today predicted he would be able to persuade the Soviets to drop their objections.

Kissinger also told newsmen during a visit to the United Nations that he was "fairly optimistic" that Congress would approve placing the American technicians in the Sinai buffer zone.

Kissinger met for over an hour earlier today with Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on the United Nations' expanded role under the new Egyptian-Israeli agreement, signed Thursday in Geneva with the Soviets boycotting the ceremony.

Well-placed sources said Soviet Ambassador Jacob A. Malik indicated his government was displeased that the provision on the U.S. technicians had been agreed to without the Soviets having been consulted.

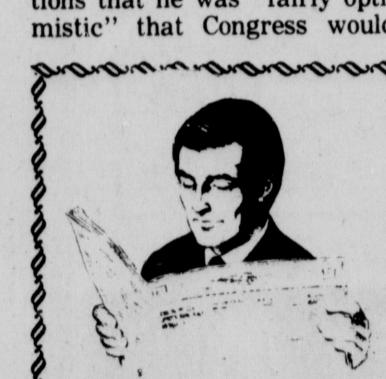

The technicians would man early-warning radar stations in the Gidi and Mitla passes and act as lookouts against armed incursions from either side into a demilitarized buffer zone to be controlled by the U.N. Emergency Force.

One U.N. source predicted that the Soviet Union, which disapproves of the agreement, might refuse to pay its share of the cost of the U.N. force. But another source said the Russians could hardly object to something both the Egyptians and the Israelis agreed to.

As an expression of their disapproval, the Russians boycotted the brief ceremony in Geneva on Wednesday at which representatives of Egypt and Israel signed the agreement negotiated by Kissinger.

This provoked a harsh attack from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who charged the Russians with a "flagrant provocation and attempt to divide the Arab front."

Speaking in Cairo, he accused the Kremlin of providing Syria and the Palestinians "with information full of lies" that Egypt was selling them out.

"The Soviet Union is free to do what it wants, but to carry false information to our brothers with the intention of dynamiting the Arab position — that we don't accept," said Sadat.

Kissinger planned a two-day stay in New York. Most of it was to be devoted to meetings with delegates attending the U.N. General Assembly's special session on economic problems of the Third World.

President Ford told an audience in Portland, Ore., that the new Israeli-Egyptian agreement was a "gamble for peace," and he predicted Congress would approve the American pledge to station some 200 American civilian technicians at electronic surveillance stations in the U.N. buffer zone.

Some figures on the number of technicians who would be involved have ranged as low as 150.

Before the President left Washington Wednesday, he and Kissinger discussed the agreement at a meeting with some 20 House and Senate leaders from both parties. Ford said later that they were nearly unanimous in their support for the accord.

But the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., said many questions were unanswered and he did not know whether Congress would approve sending Americans to the Sinai desert. Several other lawmakers said they needed more information on what the agreement was going to cost the United States.

Two die in London explosion

LONDON (AP) — A bomb exploded in the lobby of the Hilton Hotel near Buckingham Palace at lunchtime today, killing two persons and injuring 41, police said. A device that appeared to be a second bomb was found later and demolition experts were dismantling it.

Earlier police reports erroneously said three persons were killed in the explosion in the hotel, which is approximately 600 yards from the palace.

Associated Newspapers, publisher of the Daily Mail and London Evening News, said an anonymous caller with an Irish accent telephoned 10 minutes before the blast and warned the bomb would go off.

The 28-story hotel, facing Hyde Park and only a few minutes walk from the American Embassy, was filled to capacity with 700 guests.

It was the fifth bombing in or near London in the past nine days. In the four previous blasts, one person was killed and 30 were wounded. Police suspect terrorists of the Irish Republican Army are responsible for the wave of bombings.

Persons identifying themselves as members of the Weather Underground called Associated Press bureaus in Salt Lake City and San Francisco and said the bomb was aimed at the Kennecott Copper Company in protest of U.S. actions.

Ken Curtis, fire battalion chief, said the explosive apparatus was wrapped in a blanket and left in a women's restroom.

The copper company occupies the top six floors of the 18-story building owned by Zion Security Corp., officials said.

The blast came about a half-hour after a man called The AP bureau here at 12:25 a.m. and said, "This is the Weather Underground. Tonight we bombed the Kennecott national headquarters."

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A bomb exploded early today in a 17th floor restroom of the Kennecott Building here, causing an estimated $50,000 damage, authorities said. No injuries were reported.

Curtis said the women's and a men's restroom were demolished and there was some damage to adjacent offices.

Initial reports said the damage was minor.

Dumping U.S. goods must stop

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Dumping goods—totally illegal—into the United States has now become the favorite pastime of the world. The U.S. machinery to stop this groans with bureaucratic delay after delay. The halt becomes largely meaningless. But why should our foreign trade be a one-way street?

The bureaucratic dawdling has the enchanted feyness others describe as loony.

When foreign powers argue that our protection against excessive imports violates the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) international rules, Japan, for example, is already in violation with quotas on 92 categories of imports.

We face a ghastly, shattering import-export imbalance in automobiles, electrical equipment, textiles, machinery, steel, glass, etc.

Of 39 million AM-FM radios sold here annually, only about five percent are made in the U.S.A. Nearly all fine cameras as well as almost half of the black-and-white TV sets are imported.

Not a single umbrella frame is made today in the United States. They're made in Taiwan, Hong Kong and elsewhere in the Far East. Not a car wheel our railroads use is made in our country. Most of them come from Belgium. And so it goes.

Webster defines an industrial cartel as a combination of independent enterprises with similar production banding together for monopolistic control of the markets. Cartels are legal nearly everywhere outside the United States.

In fact, the businessman abroad who holds the company's top job is not usually the man who knows most about the business. It's the man who can go across the street and make a cozy, inside deal with the company's competitor. If you're after the doughnut, you don't concentrate on the hole.

Armed from the soles of his feet to the crown of his head with his cartel arrangement, one European recently said to me: "Competition is so vulgar."

In fact, in Europe most large companies, including most sober banks and insurance companies, do not give a full accounting—even to their stockholders. They are loaded with hidden reserves and hidden liabilities and seldom reveal their market quotas, competitive agreements, etc. Only emergencies flush them out.

The American farmer is literally the most productive man on earth. The harvests of one of every four of our crop-producing acres are exported. But of more than 300,000 manufacturing companies, only about 500 have significant overseas investment and manufacture abroad.

Our American companies have performed great services in the world. They have management, research and available capital and these are priceless ingredients where they operate.

American companies have an estimated $28 billion invested in Western Europe; it returns about $3 billion every year. We also have $5 billion invested in the Arab world. U.S. investment abroad has about doubled in the last decade. Sales have more than tripled.

About 3,500 U.S. companies control 25,000 affiliates. This compares with 2,800 with 10,000 affiliates in 1957. But a full 96 per cent of all American firms sell only in the United States.

Now are the four per cent that conduct an international business all giants, as usually supposed. Three out of five U.S. firms selling abroad have fewer than 100 employees.

U.S. exports run about $43 billion a year—importantly, decisively, indispensably bolstering our balance-of-international payments situation. And every $15,000 of exports is estimated to mean one U.S. job. This means countless millions of American jobs, right here in our own country, are dependent on exports.

American products seek out markets across the world. But-smack-the selling terms American products face abroad are festooned with cartridge belts and have a stink bomb at the ready.

These selling terms are controlled by the powerful cartels or are largely governmental or government-subsidized. Even barter is commonplace. The competitive terms are hard as a metal bar while the United States, at the same time, not only opens to foreigners this richest, most valuable market in the world, but snores away—sound asleep—in the matter of stopping the dumping.

Our bureaucrats are proving again that common sense isn't so common, after all. Why must Uncle Sam be Uncle Sap?

And now I am off to write from abroad, from England, Scotland, France, Belgium, West Germany, Sweden, Spain, North Africa, the Mediterranean and Italy. So this is good-bye until I land in London, and God bless our country.

Voice of the people

The Lord created us in His image (regardless of the color of our skin) fused in the heart of man. Each of us are descendants from one of the 12 tribes according to the Bible, in our veins flows the blood of many nations, but all men, with one soul. The Bible is the finest constitution given to us, alone in the 10 Commandments, especially "Do unto other's as You would like them to do unto You." In the New Testament: "Judge not, that ye be not judged," is just one example.

The holy book is often misused, misread deliberately, by each, in his own way, to fit their purpose for personal or even political reasons. God does not bring evil on its people it is man against man, nations against nations. God loves us.

All religions preach basically the same, to help each other, logical from the idea of living tradition.

Meditation is universal. All of us are human beings, whatever talents we are born with, we should use it to its fullest, to help others, by sharing it and no one has the right as an individual to doubt such qualities, because of hidden jealousy.

But why, with all the churches and preaching, is there so much hate? The world is, what we are, and as we are, so are our children. If we always criticize children, they learn to criticize others always and us. If we hate, we teach them hostility. If we fear, they will grow up to be timid. Education begins at home, traditions handed from parents to their children, especially religion, church leaders, to further, together with our school system the education. Children are born innocent, they are the clay, molded by their environment.

The concept of people, discussing religion or politics causing enemies, does not necessarily have to be true, (each one has the right to express his opinion) if it is

If we think witchcraft belongs to ancient history, we are very much mistaken, except it is done in a "different form." Yes, the truth can be sold where bigotry prevails.

Viking mission like 1492 rerun

By DON OAKLEY

Any number of things could happen to turn the Viking mission to Mars into the most expensive ($1 billion) flop in the history of space exploration. To suggest a few, in increasing order of possibility:

The twin spacecraft now winging across some 400 million miles of space—the first scheduled to land on Mars or about July 4, 1976 and the second in September—could fail to achieve orbit around the red planet; their Lander sections could fail to detach or could crash; radio communications with earth could fail or be erratic; the elaborate gear designed to investigate the planet's surface could break down...

Only one thing need happen, however, to make the Viking project the most stupendous scientific accomplishment of all time: Finding evidence of the existence of life on a planet other than earth.

Scientists involved in the project, as well as others awaiting its report, disagree about the chances of finding proof on Mars that the same evolutionary processes that led to life on earth operate elsewhere in the universe. But they are unanimous on what such a discovery would mean.

"If we find any form of life," says NASA scientist Gerald Soffen, "it will cause an explosion of thoughts about ourselves, our importance in the cosmos, and accelerate all space programs, including eventual manned landings on planets."

Little doubt that it would have such an impact on scientists, and probably theologians, too.

Ordinary people, however, have shown an amazing capacity for accepting and taking for granted a whole string of achievements which only a few years ago belonged in the realm of fantasy. Men have speculated about life on other worlds since antiquity. A generation reared on science fiction has almost come to expect it—if not on Mars, then somewhere else—and the discovery of some primitive bacterialike organism on Mars (nobody is counting on little green men) is not likely to rock them as much as the deep thinkers think.

One thing is certain, though. If there is not now life outside the earth, there will be eventually.

Even more momentous than the discovery that life exists or once existed on Mars, in terms of its accelerating effect on space exploration, is the effect such exploration itself will have directly on the future of human life.

A NASA-sponsored study group of 28 scientists in a variety of fields recently urged that the United States embark on a $100-million program to colonize space. The scitists envision a giant wheel-shaped satellite over a mile in diameter assembled in the moon's orbit—a "permanent, self-maintaining earthlike habitat for 10,000 people."

To make the idea appealing, the scientists naturally stressed the economic benefits of such an expensive venture. For example, the colonists could generate electricity from sunlight and beam it to an energy-hungry earth by microwave relay.

Little attention was given to the consequences of extraterrestrial living for the colonists themselves.

But once man takes up permanent abode in a satellite, or on the moon or another planet, once children are born and begin to grow up in these alien environments, a totally new chapter in human evolution will have been opened.

Even in the most earthlike habitats, subtle evolutionary changes, both physical and psychological, are inevitable. One day, man may even cast his seed toward the distant stars in little "earths" carrying men and women on centuries-long voyages.

Some say this has already happened and that we are the descendants of some ancient star-roving race. If so, man's urge to go into space and to find other life out there may really be a desire to go home again.

Take it from Here

REFLECTIONS—On Aug. 27, one of the first days of the opening of schools for the fall semester, The Telegraph published some advice how children might become better students submitted by Michael Heckman, Lee County regional superintendent of schools.

This prompted a letter written to this writer which was unsigned but purported to be from a parent of some children who are doing well in school and who claims to be a former teacher.

My correspondent asked I write something about the ideas advanced in the letter which are not a rebuttal to Heckman's advice but are some questions for teachers to ponder.

Receiving unsigned letters is not new to me and often, after being read, they are consigned to a file for future reference should the letter-writer ever surface.

There are questions this writer would like to ask the members of the Dixon Teachers Association which my communicator did not raise, such as why they feel it necessary to negotiate in secret with the Board of Education when it is the taxpayers' money which will pay for any concessions they win from the board.

Both they and the board act as if they are the only ones who are affected by the negotiations.

Also, over the past two years and continuing to the present time, jobs are hard to come by for anyone coming out of college, regardless of the major field of study, yet the DTA plows on ahead demanding higher pay for beginning teachers.

As noted above these are not the ideas my letterwriter wanted teachers to ponder.

She, and I only assume this because of the handwriting, and I hope male chauvinism does not show, states teachers are hired by the community "to teach within the framework of its attitudes, morals and values."

It is doubtful the community could agree on a "framework" of attitudes, morals and values, but no doubt there is some common ground and my message exhorts teachers to "set a good example," and says to them, "if you must swing, smoke pot and drink excessively... seek guidance." Most would agree with this counsel.

The second "idea" espoused by the missive I received exhorts teachers to "respect your students' rights to privacy in all areas."

Here it is suggested a student's grades, family life and personal adjustment problems should not be a topic in social situations. My communicator avers friends will "listen with bated breath but they will also be learning you cannot be trusted."

I am also asked to caution teachers announcing weights of fat and skinny kids may be a crushing blow to their egos and that it is an act of consideration to "fold" papers which are being returned so only the eyes of the recipient view what grade each child receives.

The right of privacy should be valued by all of us. Today, it may be the most threatened unalienable right we possess as being self-conscious beings and citizens of a nation which was dedicated to the preservation of certain God-given rights.

The letter directed to me further observed teachers should recognize their limitation when making subjective judgments about students. It is suggested each of us has some inherited and perhaps acquired prejudices and some gaps in our training.

The letterwriter asserts, "Studies have shown teachers' expectations of a child directly influence his performance and behavior."

It is worthy advice to caution us to recall, Jesus indicated we shall be judged by the judgments we render against others which should make us humble and recognizing, when we are called upon to make 'subjective' judgments, we, the judges, too, are imperfect.

Now the parent-correspondent pleads with teachers to keep in mind both the mom and pop and the school marm have the welfare of the child as a "primary consideration," and both should act like they are on the same team and not opponents.

This parent, who burdened me with this writing, sympathizes with teachers when they encounter "unreasonable parents," but implores the instructor not to give up on the child or to take any frustration out on him because of his parents.

Finally, my contributor, declares the job of teaching is "one of the most important," and asks each to inquire of themselves if they are a person who can do a good job in such an important position.

These ideas, which the writer has been a messenger to bring to whom it might be of concern, have merit worth considering.

Being self-described as former teacher, if she is able to give a positive response to what she has demanded of teachers, we could hope she will one day return to the profession.

Jewish Year begins with Rosh Hashana

By DAVID HENDIN

Many are surprised to learn that Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, actually takes place in the seventh and not the first month of the Jewish Year.

The holiday also confuses people because some Jews celebrate Rosh Hashanah for two days, while others celebrate only one. This year Rosh Hashanah begins with sundown on Friday, September 5.

Rosh Hashanah is the first of the 10 days of Penitence which culminate with Yom Kippur, the day of Atonement. Jewish tradition holds that God created the world on this day. Yet there is no mention in the Bible that it should serve as the New Year's Day.

The Bible does say, however, that "In the seventh month, in the first day of the month shall ye have a sabbath, a memorial blowing of trumpets, an holy convocation."

And this is the day that is celebrated as Rosh Hashanah, literally "the head of the year."

But the actual first day of the first month on the Jewish calendar falls nearer to the spring. This calendar counts from the first day of the Jews' exodus from Egypt as designated by Moses.

The next question is why some celebrate the holiday for one day, and others for two.

This dichotomy also has its roots in antiquity, for in Biblical times Rosh Hashanah was celebrated for only a day. But when the Romans crushed the ancient Jewish state and sent its inhabitants to the four corners of the earth, one of the sages added a second day to the holiday.

Since wide time differences existed in various parts of the world, concern was felt that all Jews should be able to observe at least most of the holiday at the same time. Today the Jews in Israel, as well as members of the Reform movement, have returned to the Biblical custom of celebrating for a single day.

There is no champaign or confetti in the Rosh Hashanah celebration as in celebration of the Gregorian New Year. Indeed, this holiday is considered the annual Judgment Day. Temple and synagogue services are solemn.

After an elaborate prayer service, the ram's horn, or shofar, is sounded for all to hear. Its piercing call summons the worshippers to look within and search their consciences.

The traditional holiday greeting is "May you be written down in the book of life for a good year."

At a time when the United States and the rest of the world are beset by economic, as well as other, problems of all sorts, it can be hoped that people everywhere will be "written down for a good year."

Similar declarations have come in recent times from numerous Protestant bodies and interdenominational councils: In Scriptural terms, gentile believers are "adopted" into the spiritual line of the mother faith of the Jews, says Methodist theologian A. Roy Eckardt. Catholic theologian Robert W. Gleason puts it in a sermon: "By virtue of natural, racial descent, I am a Gentile. By virtue of supernatural descent, by the grace of God, I am also a Jew . . . I rightly and proudly call Abraham and Isaac and Joseph my fathers. Because I am a Christian, I know the God of Israel because I am a Christian. I pray the prayers of Israel . . . They also are my people in the line of spiritual generation . . ."

The New Testament, based on the old, is its continuation of what was to come, perfected in a modern version.

Today the Jewish people all over the world gather in their temples to celebrate their New Year called Rosh Hashanah, translated, the beginning of a new year with a calendar era of 5736. It is not a gay event, but rather a time of emotion in prayers, a preparation for asking God to accept their passage of the bills, for His compassion and favours, to inscribe them in the book of life and good health.

Christian scholar's book explores the Jew-Gentile ties

By SELMA LEVY

Antisemitism is a combination of hate, jealousy, and distortion of Jewish history and what it really stands for. There is a book written by Frederick M. Schweitzer, a Christian scholar's objective view of Jewish-Gentile relationship — an unprecedented and vitally important corrective for centuries of distortions and neglect.

Printed in newspapers, in Dixon and Sterling a five-part Easter Series called "The Jewishness of Jesus," written by George Cornell, a religious writer, illustrated that Jews were long a target of Christians and what has been done since to correct this.

Christian and Jewish religious leaders, especially in this country, have initiated a year long program of discussions on problems that cause misunderstandings, by teaching at universities about Judaism and Christianity. A positive response to the Guidelines with papal endorsement on Interreligious Consultations and corrective measures by the Vatican is a sign of great progress. "Christianity sprang from Judaism" points out Roman Catholic guidelines issued Jan. 3 by the Vatican, urging joint study, worship and work. The spiritual bonds and historical links binding the church to Judaism.

Similar declarations have come in recent times from numerous Protestant bodies and interdenominational councils: In Scriptural terms, gentile believers are "adopted" into the spiritual line of the mother faith of the Jews, says Methodist theologian A. Roy Eckardt. Catholic theologian Robert W. Gleason puts it in a sermon: "By virtue of natural, racial descent, I am a Gentile. By virtue of supernatural descent, by the grace of God, I am also a Jew . . . I rightly and proudly call Abraham and Isaac and Joseph my fathers. Because I am a Christian, I know the God of Israel because I am a Christian. I pray the prayers of Israel . . . They also are my people in the line of spiritual generation . . ."

The New Testament, based on the old, is its continuation of what was to come, perfected in a modern version.

Today the Jewish people all over the world gather in their temples to celebrate their New Year called Rosh Hashanah, translated, the beginning of a new year with a calendar era of 5736. FAITH WILL PROVIDE YOU WITH STRENGTH

For some time, we have been regaled with dire predictions of recession, depression and other ominous terms that depict a general worsening of our economic situation; all of which must cause many of us to wonder if our own source of life's basic needs might soon be in jeopardy. The fancy words would indeed appear to forecast a grim future when translated into terms of next week's groceries or next month's rent. Throughout history, in time of trouble man has always turned to religion as a last resort, even when it should have been his first. There is no better time than now to go to your Church and pray to God for His ever-present help and guidance.

God our Maker doth provide
For our wants to be supplied.

— Traditional Hymn

"But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

Say it with prints

By JILL LESLIE SENFT
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Can you express yourself with a hippopotamus, Hamlet's soliloquy or two fried eggs? Or do you require something else? Whatever it is, you most likely can find it on a tee shirt.

At a recent convention here of people gathered from all over the country, nearly everyone had a tee shirt with something to say. A souvenir from a resort, an advertisement, a favorite beer, a proposition — even an improper proposition. Tee shirts said it all. Combine the current trend of casual dressing with a new kind of printing and the good old tee shirt becomes a way of life.

Remember the colorful little decals that came in bubble gum and the fun you had wetting them and tattooing virtually everything in sight? Tattoos on feet and hands and foreheads. Well, it's modern technology applied to this simple process that has been the impetus to the recent tee shirt craze.

Six years ago, heat transfer printing was an infant industry. Since then there have been revolutionary changes, and today there are two highly sophisticated methods.

Chances are you will not be able to differentiate between the old and the new methods of printing, nor will you really care. However, the variety of prints that are available since the advent of this new process is greater than ever before. With heat transfer printing the number of colors is larger and the quality clearer. Designs are more flexible and exciting. Intricate designs previously impossible to reproduce are now available with photographic detail. In fact, the Old Masters' works and movie stars' faces can be printed down to the detail on a lace collar or of a freckle.

Some fabrics are even enhanced by exposure to the process; some are made softer while others take on a sheen. Prices are lower than similar imported prints. And when all is said and done, the fabrics are easy to care for and durable.

Both processes center on special papers treated to release dyes as the unadorned fabric "kisses" the paper. Although they sound simple, the engineering is astonishing. The simpler of the methods, the one used most on tee shirts and sweaters, uses sheets of paper designed to the manufacturer's specifications. These designs can be from an existing collection or can be an original exclusive design. Once the print is selected, it is applied to the fabric with enormous, well-controlled heat.

On an even more simplified level, stores across the country are introducing departments where you can select any shirt and decide from among hundreds of designs and watch a salesperson, specifically trained in the technique, transfer the design.

The second method of heat transfer printing, used mostly to produce yards of fabrics for everything from sheets to dresses, was originally used on polyesters. Ninety per cent of heat transfer printing is still done on these fibers since the results continue to be the best.

This method called sublimatic (the trade name that has become synonymous with the process because of the company's early pioneering) is on rolls of paper instead of on sheets. Like the first method, heat and pressure release gases and dyes transferring the design from the paper to the fabric.

Many large fabric houses have introduced heat transfer printing as an adjunct to their regular printing. Several are not using it to its best advantage. But for those who employ it discriminately, the nuances, color and detail are unbeatable. While it will never replace other printing methods, manufacturers say, there is some speculation that it will make screen printing obsolete.

Actually, all estimates indicate that it will capture 20 per cent of the print business by the end of 1976.

Although prints are traditionally not strong in the fall, this year they are being widely used. Shirts are very important, especially those with sophisticated, intricate designs. These shirts harmonize with the tailored, elegant looks that are capturing the fall bravos.

Because of heat transfer printing and its continuous evolution, these prints are now more available — and much less expensive. You can find challis-like prints, printed tweeds and tartans that you can hardly tell are printed instead of woven. The process is capable of printing any current design. So, this year's popular prints, calicos, scenes, tryptichs, are conducive and successful when printed by this new technique.

Constant experiments and testing with new papers, fabrics and dyes has recently made it possible to print on other textiles. One recent breakthrough made it possible to print on acrylic fibers. Even with fabric that isn't flat, the design maintains its color, clarity, detail and depth. After careful and supervised testing it neither cracked, peeled nor lost color.

Do your own thing. But remember, whether you're choosing outrageous tee shirts or pretty dresses with animals tattooed all over, inevitably you're including in your wardrobe items that have been heat transfer printed.

I say it's MY day, too, and I want to look my best.

It took a lot out of me to raise this girl and I don't happen to believe the mother of the bride should look like a washed-out hag. I can't face another day of shopping but I'll pay attention to what you say. Please be on my side. —Sweat Feet

Dear Feet: Sorry, dear, you lost me on two counts — the hot pink and the plunging neckline.

The mother of the bride needn't look like a washed-out hag, but she shouldn't look like a go-go dancer, either. Save the hot-pink number for your next anniversary and settle for a pastel shade cut along conservative lines.

Dear Ann Landers: May I comment on Dr. Chester Ewing's statement that "brown-nosing" is one of the four most terrible words for us teen-agers to use?

In my high school classes, "brown-nosing" was applied not to students genuinely interested in learning, but to those who made every effort to display phony enthusiasm toward teachers in order to receive higher grades.

Brown-nosing is laughing hysterically at every dumb joke the teacher tells. It is unequivocal acceptance of every opinion the teacher holds — including his political beliefs. It is staying late after class and pretending to be consumed with the subject.

Brown-nosing reduces education to performances for the teacher's pleasure. It teaches the student how to squelch his individuality. It develops all the subhuman skills people need to support a fascist dictator. As an "A" student, I'm thankful I never had to sink that low. —N.Y. Reader

Dear N.Y.: You sound like the guy (or gal) a lot of people want to sit next to during a tough history exam. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a respectable young woman (age 23) and am dating a young man who has asked me to marry him. I am going to say yes but I need to know something first.

In my freshman year of college I fell madly in love with a fellow I thought wanted to marry me. We had sex for several months. When he suddenly decided he wanted to be free to date others I fell really used. "The Romance of the Century" ended on a very sour note.

What I need to know is this: Is it possible for a man to tell if his bride is a virgin? He has never asked and probably never will, but I'd like to know the answer to my question. —Wish I Were

Dear Wish: The answer to your question is no.

Her income real

Many families have found that one paycheck simply is not enough to meet family financial obligations, reports Lynda Harriman, University of Illinois Extension family life specialist.

Economic need is cited by most employed married women as the reason for working. And the working wife's income often raises family income substantially.

Another financial benefit for the family — which may not have been considered before she started working — is an inexpensive addition to family life and health insurance benefits, paid sick leave, and retirement benefits.

In addition to economic conditions, Mrs. Harriman says liberalized attitudes toward working wives and new opportunities resulting from anti-sex discrimination laws have contributed to the growing number of employed married women.

Numbering almost 21 million, employed married women make up a large portion of the female labor force. In fact, Mrs. Harriman concludes, the "typical" working woman of today is married, 36 years old, and may be found in any number of jobs once considered "men's work" only.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures, The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Mrs. Lavelle to exhibit her artwork

Mrs. Judy Stewart Lavelle is shown here with her painting of a pop corn wagon, entitled "Hot Buttered Nostalgia." Her art work will be on display at the White Cloud Gallery of Fine Arts, Prophetstown, in the month of October.

Judy Stewart Lavelle, Rock Falls, will be the October exhibitor at the White Cloud Gallery of Fine Arts, Prophetstown.

Born and raised in Dixon, Mrs. Lavelle won the Dixon Woman's Club scholarship to the University of Illinois to study art in 1958. She has also studied at Northern Michigan, Sauk Valley College and several local artists.

She is presently a colorist for Persona's Studio, Sterling, and teaches children and adult art classes at the Sterling YWCA. She also teaches adults at the Mellot's Arts, Bible and Craft Store.

A member of the White Cloud and former president of the Rock River Valley Art Association, Mrs. Lavelle has been an award winner in many shows and also a judge. Although her specialty is oil portraits, realistic and abstract paintings in different media will be on display at the gallery.

Brown-O'Connor exchange vows

PEKIN — Miss Kristin Elizabeth Brown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Brown, Pekin, became the wife of Jerome Paul O'Connor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Connor, Dixon, in a recent afternoon ceremony at the First United Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. William E. Rice performed the nuptial service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white floor-length gown of organza over taffeta in princess style, designed with a sheer bodice, long sleeves, a stand-up collar and train. Her headpiece was a lace and seed pearl pillbox which held a finger-tip veil of illusion. Her bouquet was a cascade of pink roses, daisies and baby's breath.

Serving as her cousin's maid of honor was Miss Karen Deterding, Normal. She was attired in a sheer flowered voile gown in princess style, with a scoop neckline and puffed sleeves. She wore a picture hat and carried a basket of pink roses and daisies.

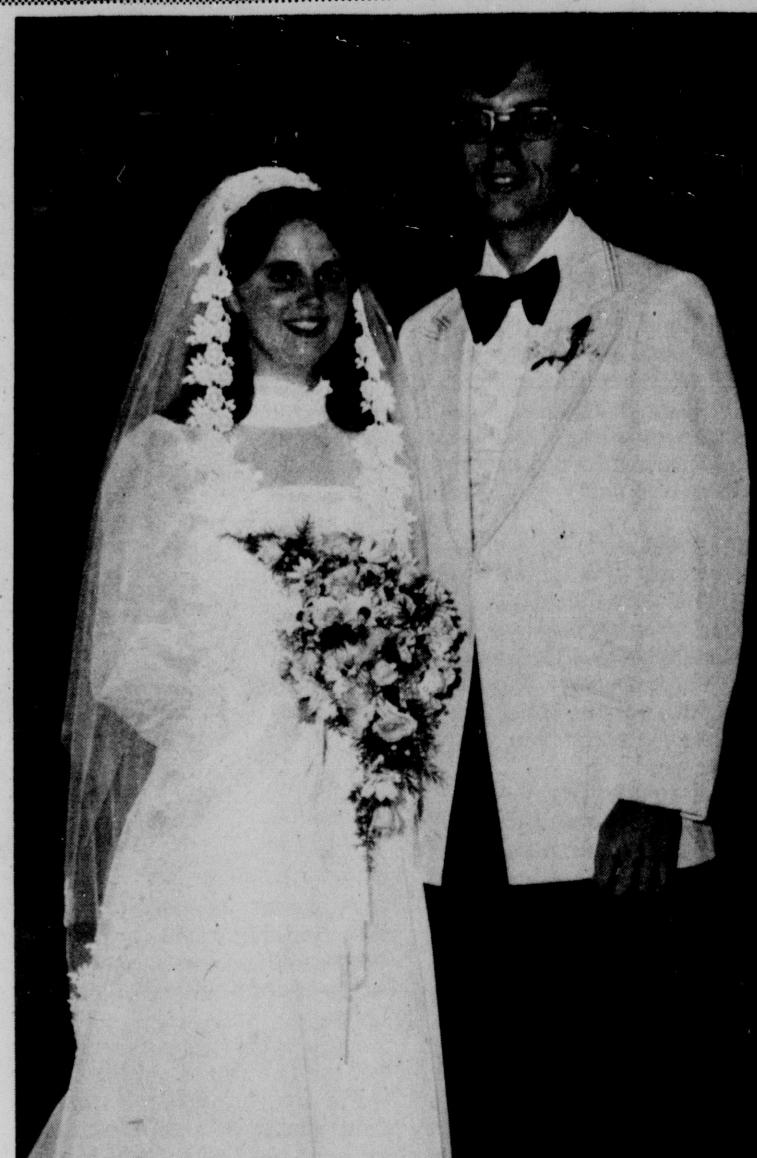

Miss Betty Coffey, Galesburg, and Miss Becky Fairly, Paterson, N.J., were bridesmaids and wore gown identical to the maid of honor's.

Serving as his brother's best man was James O'Connor, Moline. Groomsmen were William Brown, brother of the bride from Urbana, and Don Kendall, Downers Grove. Guests were seated by Tom O'Connor, brother of the groom from Freeport, and Dan and Joseph Brown, brothers of the bride from Edwardsburg.

Preceding their departure to Hot Springs, Ark., the couple was honored at a reception at the Pekin Country Club.

Mrs. O'Connor is a graduate of Bradley University and she is presently employed in Cancer Research at the Medical School of the University of Illinois, Urbana.

Mr. O'Connor is a graduate of the University of Illinois with a degree in civil engineering. He is employed as a graduate assistant at the University of Illinois, where he is working toward a master's degree.

Mother of the bride should dress conservatively

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter's wedding is only weeks away. After shopping for a dress until my feet nearly fell off I finally found something I really like.

Well, the dress is causing so much commotion I'm ready to blow my brains out. It's a hot-pink chiffon, closely fitted, a little low in the neckline, but not pink and the plunging neckline.

The mother of the bride needn't look like a washed-out hag, but she shouldn't look like a go-go dancer, either. Save the hot-pink number for your next anniversary and settle for a pastel shade cut along conservative lines.

DOWNTOWN DIXON ONLY
Thurs., Sept. 4 9 a

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE E-659: John James (Jay Jay) aged 3½, is one of our grandsons.

His brothers and sister were out for the evening, so he was different about sleeping alone in the bedroom.

"But you are such a BIG boy," Judy praised him, "so you can have the whole bedroom for yourself."

Alas, that didn't go over too well, despite her stress on "BIG."

Meanwhile, he decided he needed a glass of milk so Judy was called out of bed, and tried to win him with some cookies, too.

"You may have one before you drink your milk and then the other, afterwards," she said.

Then she returned to her bedroom.

Two minutes elapsed; then Jay Jay called out to her:

"Mommy, I didn't kiss you goodnight."

His daddy was getting a bit irritated by this time, but he told Judy to go on and kiss him but tell him to keep quiet!

As Judy stooped over to receive his kiss, he generously added:

"I'll give you TWO big kisses for you gave me two cookies."

Then Judy firmly informed him that he must go to sleep like a BIG boy and not bother her and his daddy anymore.

"Wait a minute," Jay Jay called, as she started to leave his bedroom.

"Come back for I have a good idea."

Reluctantly, Judy returned to his side and then he gave her this splendid suggestion:

"Mommy, why don't you sleep with me tonight and let daddy sleep by himself so he can feel what it's like to be a BIG boy?"

Well, I don't recall just how Judy extricated herself from this dilemma.

But I cite Jay Jay's case to show the devious reasoning of a 3½-year-old who turned the tables on his mother.

For it shows that kiddies even below the kindergarten level, are not inert beings, to be influenced and manipulated by us adults.

Instead, they are alert and capable of some very clever reasoning.

So the parent-child relationship is a two-way street!

And if you wish to whet the wits of your kiddies, thus boosting their functional I.Q. and raising their school grades, do this:

(1) Be a conversational family! Don't merely grunt in monosyllables, but carry on lively discussion, letting them break in at will.

For their vocabulary zooms via such family conversation.

In fact, it has been found that having a telephone in a home, as well as a daily newspaper, widens a child's vocabulary and gives him higher school marks!

(2) Read wholesome children's story books to your toddlers and encourage the older youngsters to read aloud.

"Classics, Illustrated" are about out of print, but if you can get any of them or other dramatic stories, agree to do the dishes for your early grammar schoolers if they'll read such tales aloud to you parents!

(3) Take your kiddies to Sunday School, where they become stimulated and socialized by others even by the toddler age.

(4) Fathers, attend at least one PTA or PTO meeting during the school year and praise any of your child's drawings or exam papers on display in the classrooms.

(5) Send for my booklet "How to Raise Your Child's School Marks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Sept. 5, the 248th day of 1975. There are 117 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1774, the first Continental Congress assembled at Carpenter's Hall in Philadelphia.

On this date:

In 1670, William Penn was arrested for holding a Quaker meeting in Grace Church in London.

In 1882, members of labor unions held the first Labor Day parade in the United States as 10,000 workmen marched in New York City with placards and banners.

In 1885, Jake Gumper of Fort Wayne, Ind., bought the first gasoline pump to be manufactured in the United States.

In 1905, the Treaty of Portsmouth, N.H., ended the Russo-Japanese war.

In 1941, during World War I, German forces captured the city of Rheims.

In 1939, the United States proclaimed neutrality in World War II.

Ten years ago: Fierce battles broke out south of Danang air base in South Vietnam.

Five years ago: American B-52 bombers hit Viet Cong targets in the Mekong Delta of South Vietnam.

One year ago: British police thwarted an attempted theft of the famous Stone of Scone from Westminster Abbey.

Today's birthdays: Former Att. Gen. John N. Mitchell is 62. Movie producer Daryl Zanuck is 73.

Thought for today: Common sense is not an issue in politics — it's an affliction. Will Rogers.

Bicentennial footnote: The Continental Congress met in Philadelphia, then adjourned, from day to day, until Sept. 13, because of insufficient business.

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am being treated for mild high blood pressure with Hydropress and take Valium. I'm 46, male, 5 feet 9 inches and weigh 205 pounds. I'm a good 40 pounds overweight. My work is 60 percent sedentary and I'm just recovering from a broken ankle that keeps me down.

My bad habits include smoking a pipe without inhaling and a drink now and then. I use decaffeinated coffee, and other than the above I have always been in good health.

My problem is attacks of rapid heart action. I can be sitting reading with a heart rate of 68 when it suddenly jumps to 100 or 125. Sometimes this is accompanied by very weak feelings. One attack was so bad my wife called the rescue squad, as I felt I was going under.

Also, in the morning hours I have very heavy, achy feelings in the thighs and calves of legs. I am tired and depressed, which is unlike my previous nature.

My doctor says everything is O.K., and my blood pressure is good with Hydropress, but I get no satisfaction on what causes the rapid heart attacks or what to do about it.

Is this a side effect of the Hydropress?

DEAR READER — To identify exactly what your rapid heart action is, it would be necessary to get an electrocardiogram during one. The description of sudden onset does suggest one of the

My problem is attacks of rapid heart action. I can be sitting reading with a heart rate of 68 when it suddenly jumps to 100 or 125. Sometimes this is accompanied by very weak feelings. One attack was so bad my wife called the rescue squad, as I felt I was going under.

Also, in the morning hours I have very heavy, achy feelings in the thighs and calves of legs. I am tired and depressed, which is unlike my previous nature.

My doctor says everything is O.K., and my blood pressure is good with Hydropress, but I get no satisfaction on what causes the rapid heart attacks or what to do about it.

Is this a side effect of the Hydropress?

If your attacks are severe and frequent, your doctor could give you medicine to calm your heart down. I do not mean another sedative, but medicines such as quinidine (there are now many others) that have a direct action on soothing the heart.

The Hydropress ordinarily does not cause these types of problems. If you have washed out a lot of potassium, though. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

from elimination of fluid as a result of Hydropress, then you might be more susceptible to such attacks. You could help ensure that you have enough potassium in your system by drinking three glasses of orange juice a day.

You really do need to lose that weight. Your blood pressure might be all right if you lost a good 50 pounds. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Playoff hosts selected

BLOOMINGTON—Host conferences for Preliminary Round games in the Illinois High School Association (IHSA) Football Playoff Series have been announced, as well as the general outline of the pairing in each of the five classifications. Actual pairings are scheduled to be drawn the weekend of Nov. 1-2 and will be made along the traditional IHSA geographic pattern.

The champions of eight selected conferences in each class will host the preliminary round games Nov. 5. Those games will be played at 1:30 p.m. unless the two competing schools agree to a 7:30 p.m. contest. Quarterfinal games are set for 1:30 p.m. Nov. 8. The semifinal games will be played at 1:30 p.m. Nov. 15. All five championship games will be played the weekend of Nov. 21-22 on the artificial turf of Hancock Stadium on the campus of Illinois State University in Normal.

Conferences selected to serve as the host for preliminary round games, by class, are:

Class 1A—Little Eight (Northwest), Blackhawk, Little Eight (North Central), Vermillion Valley, Black Diamond, Little Okaw Valley, Western Area Conference (WAC), and Meridian.

Class 2A—Northwestern Illinois, Three Rivers, West Central, Little Six, Sangamon Valley, Waukeka, Little Illini and Big Okaw Valley.

Class 3A—Shark, West Suburban Catholic, Little Seven, North Central Illinois

(Southwest), Heart of Illinois, Kankakee Valley, Apollo and North Egypt.

Class 4A—North Suburban, DuPage Valley, SICA-East, SICA-South, North Central Illinois (Northwest), Mid-State 9, South Seven and Capitol.

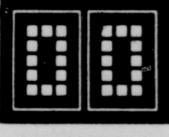

Class 5A—Chicago Catholic League, East Suburban Catholic, Central Suburban South, Mid-Suburban South, SICA-West, SICA-North, Western Big Six and Big Nine.

Host and visiting schools after the first round will be determined by the following factors: 1) If both teams advancing have hosted, the bottom team in the bracket shall be the host school; 2) If both teams advancing have not hosted, the bottom team in the bracket shall be the host school; and 3) If one of the teams advancing has not been the host school it shall be the host for that game.

For the state championship game in each class, the team advancing from the top half of the bracketing shall be the visiting team and the team advancing from the bottom half of the bracketing shall be the home team. The home team in all games will wear the dark jerseys.

In addition, the executive secretary has been granted authority by the board of directors to re-assign the site of a playoff game location in the event unusual circumstances develop. At the same time, a site other than the designated host school's home field may be used subject to approval of the board of directors.

"Putting me in the bull pen was the right thing to do," said Splitteroff. "It was a challenge to me. I had to come into the game in tough situations and forced me to start throwing the ball instead of nibbling."

Frank White, celebrating his 24th birthday, and Jim Wohlford provided most of the Kansas City offense as four Chicago pitchers issued 15 walks to make matters easier for the Royals.

White had two singles and a double and drove in three runs while Wohlford drove in three runs with a pair of singles.

"I've never played in the big league on my birthday," said White, a graduate of the Royals' Baseball Academy. "I still don't know if I'm the regular second baseman or not."

Dixon varsity splits, sophs win two

By MIKE CUNIFF
Telegraph Sports Editor
SAUK VALLEY — The DeKalb Barbs finished fifth in the Illinois High School Association state meet in 1974 and if the showing the Barbs put on Thursday, here, was any indication, reservations should be made for another trip to Peoria the first week of November.

All the Barbs did was sweep the first four places and 10 of the top 16 spots in the varsity competition to completely dominate Dixon and Rockford Harlem. DeKalb defeated the Dukes 18-37 and Harlem 15-47. Dixon beat Harlem 19-41 in the other dual meet.

In the underclassmen action, Dixon pulled out a pair of triumphs by bunching four harriers in the first nine places. The Dukers nipped DeKalb 25-30 and Harlem 26-31. DeKalb edged Harlem 27-30.

Tom Wychte, Brad Rongey, John Vaughn and Steve Sullivan gave DeKalb the top four slots in the varsity encounter. Wychte's winning time over three miles was 15:29.5 followed by Rongey's 15:54, Vaughn's 16:10 and Sullivan's 16:11.

Duane Cowley gave the Dukes fifth place with a 16:13. Dixon harriers Ed Love (16:37) and John Ortgiens (16:38) finished sixth and seventh, respectively while Martin Woodruff of DeKalb grabbed eighth in 16:43.

Jim Magnifici, a junior, took ninth for the Dukes (16:53) before Harlem's initial finisher — Scott Peterson — entered the chute in 16:55. DeKalb then grabbed five of the next six places with Dan Meyer, Brian Sullivan, Bill Woods, Dave Christensen and Paul Grosklags finishing in that order. Harlem's Tom Miller took 13th to snap the DeKalb streak.

Dixon's Louie Apple was 17th (17:33) and freshman Tim Mott 18th (17:36) with DeKalb's Tim Ledbetter and Harlem's Mary Mackey rounding out the top 20.

Other Dixon finishers were Mark Swegle 21st, Ross Radant 27th, Doug Stouffer 28th and Ken Hicks 34th.

DeKalb's Pat Cahill was 25th, Mark Woods 30th and Frank Luedtke 31st. Harlem rounded out with Scott Carlson 21st, Dave Schick 22nd, Brad Bradford 23rd, Dale Brinker 26th, Pedro Schunacher 29th, Rick Rogers 32nd and Tom MacKenzie 33rd.

DeKalb then grabbed fourth and sixth as Kevin Huber finished in 13:07 and Dennis Christensen in 13:20. Dixon's Steve Christiansen was fifth in 13:15 and Ben Gamel seventh in 13:42. DeKalb's John Sheehan was seven seconds behind was pretty good for the course for this time of the year."

"The winning time last year when we ran out invitational consisting of 15 or 16 schools was 12:20 so he was only 30 seconds off that pace and the invitational was held a month later in the season," Browners added.

Schunacher's 12:54 grabbed third place in the sophomore meet as Harlem teammates Russ Littlejohn and Don Baker finished 1-2 with times of 12:44 and 12:45, respectively, over the 2.24 mile course.

DeKalb then grabbed fourth and sixth as Kevin Huber finished in 13:07 and Dennis Christensen in 13:20. Dixon's Steve Christiansen was fifth in 13:15 and Ben Gamel seventh in 13:42. DeKalb's John Sheehan was seven seconds behind Gamel for eighth place with Tim Hicks of Dixon ninth in 13:55 and Harlem's Dave Hodges 10th in 13:56.

Other Dixon finishers were Mark Lawer 12th, John Wooyatt 14th, Tim Higgs 20th, Bruce Belman 23rd, Jeff Wiggins 25th, Ed Deets, 26th, Todd Mondock 28th, Bob Love 30th and Chris Staley 31st.

DeKalb rounded out with Fred Busby 11th, Bill Ellis 13th, Mark Setchell, 15th, Bruce Randolph 17th, Ben Hasan 18th, Bob Skellon 22nd, Mark Peter 27th and Dennis Haile 29th.

Dean Paschen of Kaneland took the varsity race with a 16:47 clocking, the second fastest time recorded at Woodhaven. Randy Taylor, of Mt. Morris, holds the course best of 16:40 established in 1974. Kaneland's Tom Willey took 21st.

De Clerk converted passes from Hanson and Bill Burnham to tally the tying goal at the start of the second period but Newark's Norm Clause shattered the deadlock before the frame was over. A goal by Dave Morris wrapped up the Norsemen victory in the final period.

The Paw Paw girls soccer team decided Newark 1-0 at Paw Paw on a goal by Gayle Brown in the first period. Diane Pfeifer garnered an assist on the scoring effort. Both teams are in action Tuesday with the boys hosting Sonoma and the girls traveling to Sonoma.

Lanny Carlson, Ernie Musser and Ray Kranna of Kaneland and Oregon's John Mershon rounded out the top 14. In the junior varsity action, Kaneland copped a 22-37 decision. Oregon's Bob Barnett grabbed individual honors with an 11:42 over the two-mile course.

Kaneland swept the next three places with Bill Mederach second, Mike Heyob third and Bill Magerko fourth. Oregon's Steve Reid was fifth (12:01), Dave Bocker ninth, Jeff Bredeson 11th, Jim Corcoran 12th and Mike Hawn 19th.

Oregon now goes to the Rockford West Invitational on Saturday.

Individually, for the Redmen, Dale Sutkay's 76 was the best round while Dan Quick and Dave Summers carded 78's.

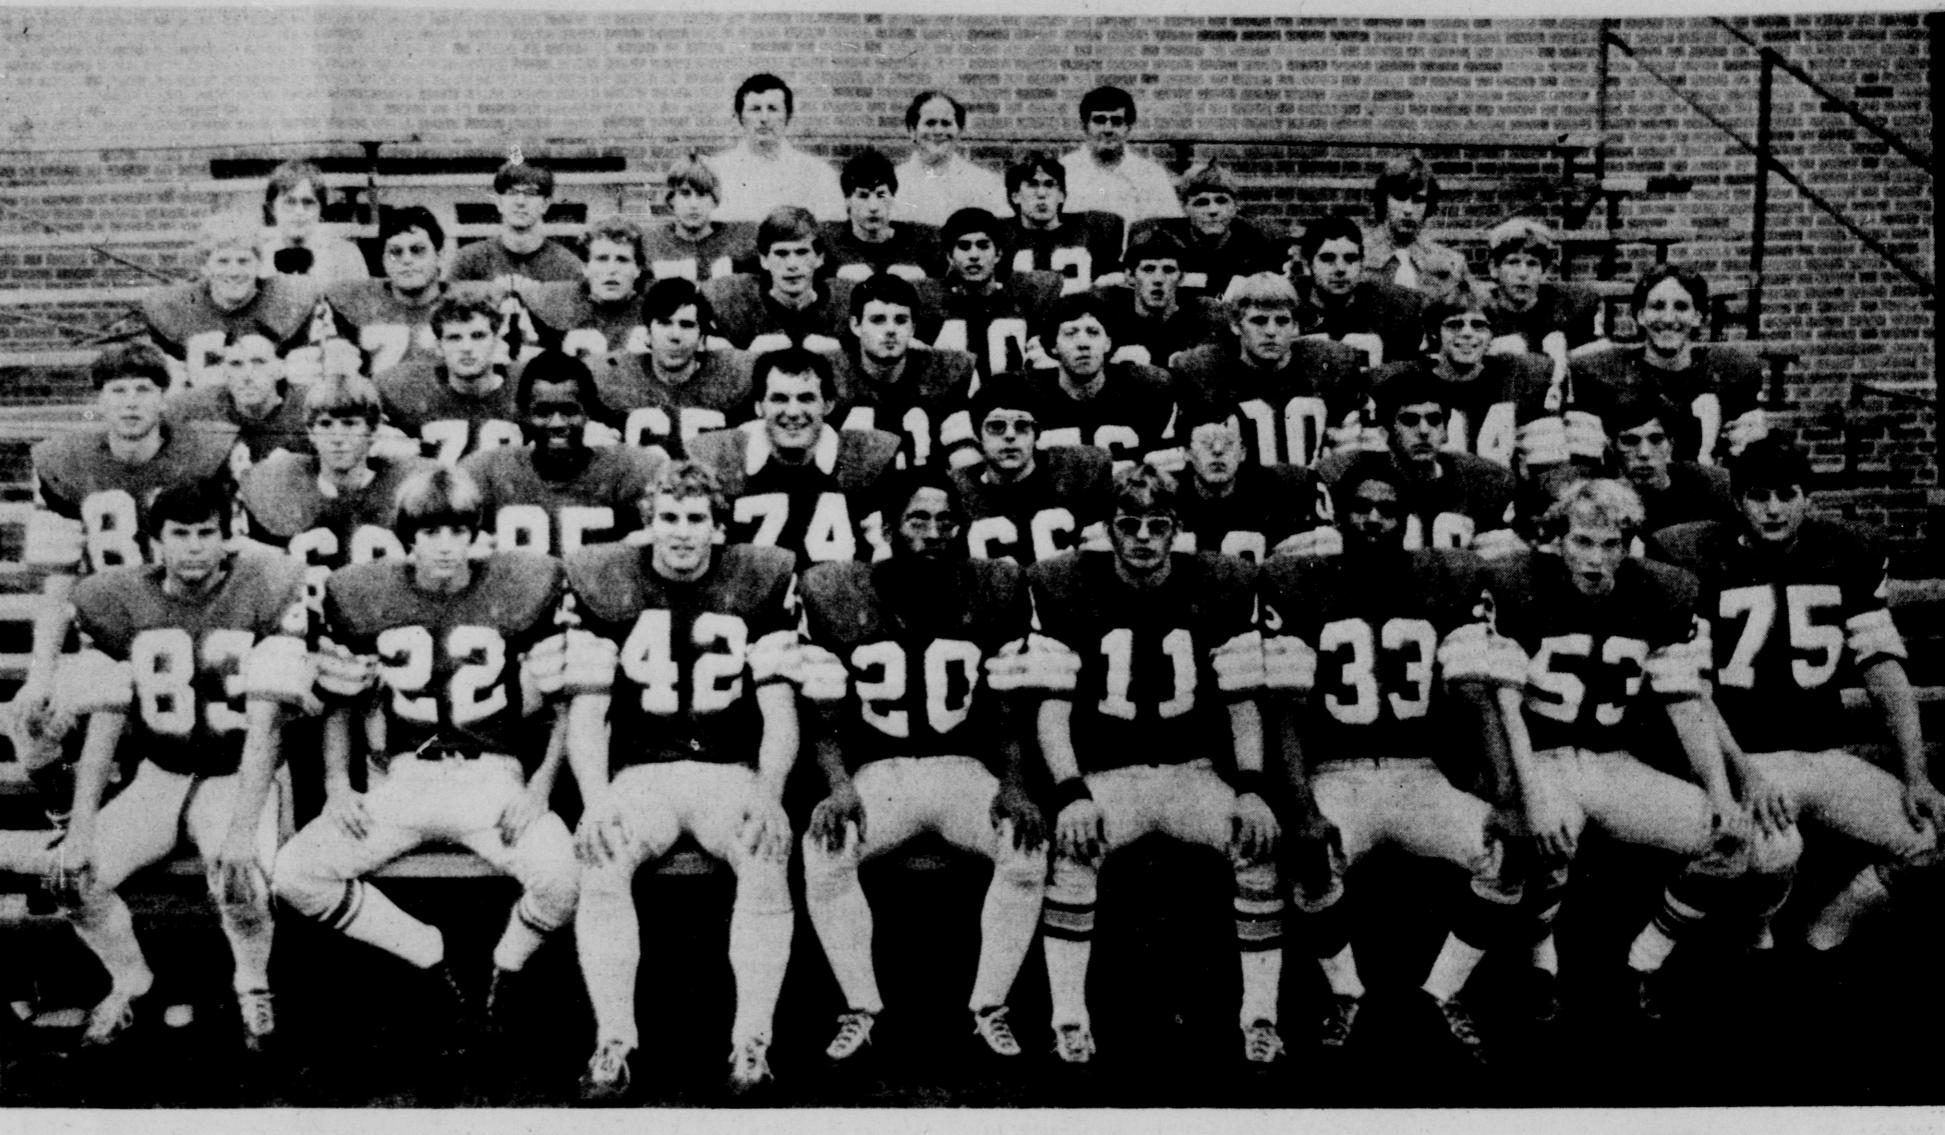

Mike Houseman turned in a 79 while Brad Quick finished with a non-counting 88. Sauk Valley, now 2-1 for the season, hosts a meet today and then goes to the Highland '36' on Tuesday.

After sweep of crucial series

Boston's number is 18

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Remember how the Boston Red Sox were supposed to fade in the stretch? As soon as they started to feel the pennant pressure in September, critics claimed, the Bosox would fold like an accordian.

Well, consider this: Boston's magic number is 18.

"It'll be tough for them to catch us now," said Boston rookie Fred Lynn, echoing a tone of confidence heard in all corners of the Red Sox' locker-room after they beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-1 Thursday night to complete a sweep of their "crucial" two-game series.

The Red Sox have opened an eight-game bulge over the Orioles in the American League East, and with 25 games left to play, any combination of 18 Boston victories or Baltimore defeats will mean a division flag for Beantown.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Kansas City Royals blanked the Chicago White Sox 7-0, the New York Yankees beat the Detroit Tigers 8-1, and the Cleveland Indians outscored the Milwaukee Brewers 10-5 and the California Angels defeated the Texas Rangers 6-4. Oakland and Minnesota were not scheduled.

With Luis Tiant a late scratch because of muscle spasms in his back, Boston Manager Darrell Johnson decided two Red Sox pitchers might do the job of one. So he split the mound time between

Bike winner tries one out

Mary Quest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Quest, 416 Division St., tries out a new bicycle after she won a contest for accumulating the most money for the Muscular Dystrophy Campaign held last weekend. Mary rounded up $150 for the drive, which was supported in the local area by the Dixon Jaycees. She received a bicycle from Grant City for her efforts. Speak against proposed freedom of information

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — One journalist said it was like being against motherhood. Another said he half-expected a bolt of lightning to come out of the sky.

But both men and others told a legislative subcommittee Thursday that they believed a proposed state "freedom of information" law might do more harm than good for reporters.

"For a journalist to say he opposes freedom of information bills could possibly be likened to someone opposing motherhood or the flag," said Bill Miller, a 25-year veteran Springfield newsman and now associate professor of public affairs at Sangamon State University in Springfield.

"The fear is that once the law is on the books, future legislatures will keep adding amendments providing further exemptions leaving the reporter in worse shape than he is today," Miller said.

A similar concern was expressed by Dave West, manager of the Illinois Press Association, who said: "I feel like something of a heretic and half expect a bolt of lightning to strike to be saying that news reporters have their doubts about a Freedom of Information Act."

The subcommittee of the House Executive Committee is holding hearings on the entire federal government and some 44 states currently have laws that specify what records, memoranda, rules, regulations and other such documents of governmental bodies are open to inspection by the public.

Several bills to create such an act in Illinois were introduced in the General Assembly this year, but were all referred to the subcommittee for further study. Matijevich has said the subcommittee, if it recommends a bill at all, will draft its own bill.

The measures under consideration contain a procedure by which a reporter or other member of the public could appeal through the courts the refusal by a government official to provide information.

"Leave us free to fight our own battles," said C.L. Dancey, editor of the Peoria Journal-Star. "Don't provide game rules that remove us from the battlefield and throw the whole thing into the hands of lawyers and courts and processes."

"The more machinery you set up to 'protect freedom' here, the less freedom there will be," he said.

One alternative would be passage of a joint resolution stating that it is the legislature's intent that governmental units conduct the public's business as openly as possible, said Leroy S. Clemens, executive editor of the Daily Courier-News in Elgin.

Unhurt as car goes off road

OREGON — A Byron youth escaped injury Thursday night when the car he was driving left Baker Road and overturned in a cornfield. David Friesen, 16, told Ogle County Sheriff's Police he was rounding a curve on Baker Road when the brakes on his 1969 Toyota failed and the auto left the pavement.

Extensive damage was reported to the car. No tickets were issued.

Flip-flop by Howlett on license plates

By WILLIAM C. WERTZ

Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — In politics you hardly dare blink an eye—before you know it, black has become white.

Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett, for example, announced this week his recommendation that Illinois issue license plates good for five years instead of one.

Howlett, Democrat, didn't mention it on television or in his news releases, but less than six months ago he fought to kill such an idea in the General Assembly.

One of those who remembers Howlett's original position is

Rep. Ronald E. Griesheimer, R-Waukegan.

It was Griesheimer who introduced legislation this spring creating a five-year license plate system. It never got out of committee.

Testifying against Griesheimer's bill in committee, Howlett's assistants argued that abandoning annual license plates would cost the state $30 million in lost revenue over the five-year period and allow hundreds of thousands of Illinois motorists to flaunt the law and not renew their registrations.

They displayed a yellow license plate with an orange sticker to demonstrate how impossible it would be for law enforcement officials to spot plates which had not been renewed properly.

Illinois Focus

Now, citing new studies, Howlett's position is that multi-year license plates will save $21 million over a five-year period and cause no problems for law enforcement officers. "Color keying the annual decal sticker to contrast with the plate makes it easy to spot a valid registration from a distance," he says now.

What caused this sudden switch?

New evidence, according to the secretary of state's office. "Our previous position was based on the information and the evidence we had at hand," said one official. "The secretary had a new study done and he's acting on it. That's all there is to it."

But Griesheimer accuses Howlett of "cheap partisan politics."

"A little over four months ago, he (Howlett) could not say anything good about a five-year license plate. There is little doubt in my mind that this is based upon the fact that we had a Republican sponsor of an otherwise good piece of legislation which would have saved the people of Illinois a substantial amount of money," Griesheimer said.

"For too many years, the people have been plagued with the fancy footwork of cheap politicians who spend more time advancing their own interests than they do attending to the business of the people," he said.

SUPER MUTT? No, this highjumping hound is just showing off his talents during St. Petersburg, Fla.'s annual "Mutt Show" held for doglovers by that city's Parks Department.

War against mosquitos compared to riot control

CHICAGO (AP) — The mosquito-carried encephalitis outbreak in Chicago's south suburbs makes the area's mosquito abatement district look "like a police department during a riot," says a district official.

"People from all walks of life have been calling. Some are irate, others are just plain scared," said James Pauly, the district's general manager.

"Under normal circumstances, we try to check out each complaint. But we've been getting more calls than we can handle. It's like a police department during a riot," Pauly said.

State health officials Wednesday reported 17 new cases of St. Louis encephalitis, a viral disease carried by the Northern house mosquito. Of the state's 107 confirmed, probable and suspected cases, Cook County has registered 73, mostly in the south and southwest suburbs.

To combat the disease, authorities recommend staying indoors at night, using insect repellent, spraying around homes and emptying containers of stagnant water, where the insect breeds.

Many families said they canceled Labor Day plans to picnic outdoors because of the scare.

"We didn't get out to the forest preserve like we planned. We figured that would be asking for it," said Lawrence Dettlaff Jr. of Oak Lawn.

Mary Mikos, a Blue Island housewife, said she "emptied the bird bath and sprayed around the house. A hospital in our neighborhood has a number of cases of encephalitis. That's hitting close to home."

Predictably, area sales of mosquito repellants and sprays have boomed. "They're buying it like crazy," said Lloyd Sherman, assistant manager of a Blue Island drug store. "Over the weekend, every can of repellent I had was bought up."

The assistant manager of a drug store in Oak Lawn said his customers bought 34 cases of mosquito repellent in a week. "That's a whole lot more than normal," said John Cibrias. "I think people are really worried, especially where their kids are concerned. They keep asking which spray is best."

Managers at a number of suburban grocery stores said they were sold out of insect repellent, and a spokesman for S.C. Johnson & Son, Inc., in Racine, Wis., which manufactures Off and Yard Guard, said, "We're well aware of that situation and we're in the process of diverting more stock to those suburbs."

Some residents said they felt the mosquito abatement district could do more. "They used to spray with a crop duster, but then people said that was polluting the air," said a Harvey woman. "Now the mosquitoes are really bad."

Others were more philosophical. "We're old folks so we stay inside pretty much anyway," said retired ironworker Charles Aurand of Burbank.

And Joseph Ryan, a printer from Blue Island, said, "I figure odds of getting it are pretty slim. So I'm not going to get an ulcer worrying about mosquitoes."

"This year," the Congressman noted, "eight young men from the 16th Congressional District were accepted by the four academies, a fine showing. I hope that next year's class will include several qualified young ladies from our area as well. The academies

Anderson will consider female academy applicants

WASHINGTON — Congressman John B. Anderson today announced that he will be happy to consider young women applying for appointment next year to the U.S. Service Academies.

"I anticipate that Congress will pass legislation I have supported enabling women to attend the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Merchant Marine Academies. I am looking forward to considering application of any qualified candidate, male or female, and urge any student who is interested in an appointment to contact my Washington office as soon as possible."

"This year," the Congressman noted, "eight young men from the 16th Congressional District were accepted by the four academies, a fine showing. I hope that next year's class will include several qualified young ladies from our area as well. The academies offer a fine education—an excellent opportunity for those who can meet their rigorous academic and physical standards and are interested in serving their country by pursuing a military career."

Anderson selects his appointees on the basis of their high school marks, extracurricular activities, physical ability, and leadership potential. Applicants are also asked to take a Civil Service exam arranged through the Congressman's office. After he has chosen his primary and alternate candidates for open positions, the Academy authorities exercise final approval of applicants meeting their standards.

Anyone wishing further information should write to Congressman John B. Anderson, 1101 Longworth Building, Washington, D.C. 20515, before Sept. 20.

TV has positive side effects too

CHICAGO (AP) — A California researcher has concluded in a study that television has the potential for influencing adults in positive as well as negative ways.

Dr. David Loyer, a social psychologist, said his study "seems to refute the notion, both comforting to the industry and supported by previous research, that television entertainment has no appreciable effects on adults except to amuse and divert."

Loyer, a researcher at the University of California medical school at Los Angeles, presented his findings at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association, which ended Wednesday.

A great many claims have been made about the effects of television, but little "hardnosed research" has been done to support these claims, he said. Loyer, formerly a television writer, film producer, newsman and TV Guide editor, added that modern technology "has presented us the opportunity either to dramatically advance or to degrade and possibly annihilate ourselves."

He said, "In mass entertainment we have on hand what appears to be a powerful tool for driving us one way or the other."

Loyer and his colleagues chose 260 married couples in the Los Angeles area to watch several types of television programs to determine, through tests, effects on the psychological and social functioning of adults.

The categories included groups considered helpful and hurtful, or violent.

Episodes of The Waltons, Mary Tyler Moore, Friends and Lovers and MASH produced the most positive effects—leaving viewers feeling affectionate, kindly, warm-hearted and forgiving.

During the week of viewing, those who watched these programs also reported a decline in aggressive feelings.

On the other hand, those who watched violent programs, such as Hawaii Five-O, Cannon and Mannix, maintained an aggressive mood throughout the week.

Loyer said that previous research has shown that emotionally arousing films of many types will increase aggressive moods.

Patricia Neal fights back after many misfortunes

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Sometimes," says Patricia Neal with a wry smile, "I think that God must have been looking the other way."

The Academy Award-winning actress ("Hud," 1963) was reflecting on the Job-like sorrows that have afflicted her life.

She has never allowed herself to indulge in self-pity, neither is she a Pollyanna. She is a realist.

"In everyone's life a lot of bad things happen and a lot of good things happen," she remarked. "I just seemed to have had a larger dose of the bad things."

Her oldest daughter, Olivia, died at 7 after a sudden attack of measles. Son Theo was hit by a taxi as an infant and underwent a series of brain operations.

In 1965, Pat was starting a film when she was hit by a series of strokes that almost killed her.

She returned from paralysis to deliver a stunning performance in "The Subject Was Roses," which brought an Academy nomination for her—she lost to Katharine Hepburn and Barbra Streisand.

Of late, Pat has been a transatlantic commuter, flying here for television roles from her home near London.

She has been here for a segment of "Little House on the Prairie."

After a morning of sitting in bed with her three frontier children around her, Pat Neal retired to her dressing room and talked about her life and career.

She laughed about the fact that misfortune seems to stalk her television career. Earlier this year she did two TV movies, "Eric," in which her son had leukemia, and "Things in Their Season," in which she had leukemia. Her affliction in "Little House on the Prairie" is Hodgkin's disease.

She has been coming to the United States three or four times a year.

After finishing "Little House on the Prairie," she returns home via New York, where she makes another commercial for an instant coffee maker. She has done 12 of them, and they pay more than her dramatic roles.

Miss Neal's return to such an active career is remarkable in view of the three massive strokes she suffered. She displays little aftermath of the attack, except in her inability to recall names. Learning lines has been a problem.

"I worked six to nine months to learn that script I did when I came back ('The Subject Was Roses')," she said.

"I managed to learn everything but that long speech up on the roof. I had to use a Teleprompter for that."

Lockers leap into NBC line up

Watching the dance group known as The Lockers can make you very nervous at first. They do such wild leaps and turns that you are sure they will break every bone in their bodies — until you finally realize that they just couldn't

The six young men and one woman will display their amazing new dance form as stars of "The Saturday Preview Revue," to be colorcast on NBC Sept. 5 (7:30-8 p.m.). The special introduces new elements of the network's Saturday morning children's schedule, which premieres the following morning.

The Lockers group was originated several years ago in South Central Los Angeles when Tony Basil, a young woman who had been trained in all phases of dance, first saw Don Campbell perform his own invention, the lock — changing positions with split-second speed while "locking" into a fractional freeze between each movement.

possibly have any bones and still do those steps.

John Davey— instant TV star

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actors usually have at least a few weeks to prepare for a major role. Not John Davey. He was starring in a television series two hours after his agent called to ask if he wanted the job.

The series is "Shazam!" — a Saturday morning children's show on CBS about Captain Marvel, the flying superhero who appeared in Whiz Comics from 1940 to 1953.

Davey was at home with his 8-year-old son, Tommy, when the telephone call came July 2. Filmation Studios had just fired last season's Captain Marvel, actor Jackson Bostwick. Filmation says Bostwick, after completing two shows for the new season, was holding out for more money. Bostwick's attorney isn't saying anything.

Then the question came: Did Davey want the part?

"What hit me was panic," the handsome ex-boxer recalls now.

"Usually an actor is thrilled with any acting job at all, but I was not familiar with 'Shazam!' All I could think of was Captain Kangaroo — you know, sitting in a room with kids throwing cake at you."

Davey's agent recommended taking the job and told him the production crew already was on location awaiting the new Captain Marvel's arrival. Davey said he'd call him back in a few minutes.

Davey, whose six-year acting career has consisted primarily of guest starring roles in TV series and a couple of films, was wary of doing a children's show. He decided to consult his wife. He called her at work. She wasn't in.

"So," Davey recounts, "I turned to my son and I explained they wanted me to play Captain Marvel. Well, he just went right through the ceiling. He said, 'Oh, my gosh, wow, really?' — you know?

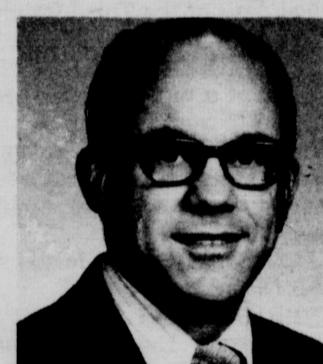

"Well, when I saw the look on his face, I thought if I could be his hero, even for a while, it would be worth it. So I called my agent and got directions to the set."

His arrival was greeted with applause from the crew. Davey donned his red costume with the thunderbolt across the chest.

Sequel to Star Trek ready to be launched

NEW YORK (AP) — Okay, Trekkies, the relief crew for the Enterprise is checking in, but they're on Moonbase Alpha now and you'll have to study the TV listings to learn if you'll see them in your area.

For civilians, this means a new British-made science fiction series called "Space: 1999" is afoot. Its makers hope it'll capture the rapture viewers have shown for the old "Star Trek" series.

Judging from a look at the first episode of "Space: 1999," this syndicated hour-long series may be a winner, if only for its outstanding outer-space special effects. They are fantastic.

The show stars "Mission Impossible" veterans Martin Landau and Barbara Bain as the commander and chief medical officer, respectively, of an internationally manned space station on the moon.

Barry Morse, best known as the detective who chased the fugitive on "The Fugitive," also is a regular, playing a scientist who helps run the moon base and supply grim looks. The cause of grimness in the opening show is a mysterious sickness causing horrible deaths to anyone working near or flying over a section of Moonbase Alpha's nuclear waste system.

No, it isn't radiation sickness. We won't reveal what it is, but it is jeopardizing a planned rocket launch from the moon, or what Landau modestly calls "the spaceflight of the century."

The nuclear waste has been shipped up from planet earth — let's hear a big boo, now, for the earth — and you know that sooner or later it's going to blow and cause no end of trouble.

Woe time starts when one waste disposal area, unused since 1994 and presumed dormant, shows a dramatic rise in heat levels.

"It's incomprehensible," Landau says. "Heat without atomic energy."

Yep, the thing goes boom. But it's a burp compared to the blow building up in an active nuclear waste area, which has 140 times the amount of hot trash than area one.

Amid many serious words and superb special effects shots of space shuttles at work and in distress, area two blows, despite frantic efforts to keep the explosion down to poof size.

"FIRE!"

One starts every 45 seconds

A fire breaks out in an American home every 45 seconds. Tragically, many families who have fires in their homes don't have adequate homeowners insurance.

Maybe their insurance was fine a few years back. But building costs have gone up more than 50 per cent in the last few years. So has the value of many homes.

Make sure your insurance covers your home and everything in it at today's higher prices.

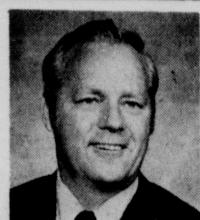

Review your insurance with your Country Companies agent. There's a good chance he can save you some money with coverage from Country Mutual.

Little House on the Prairie begins second season

"I have discovered, in a very strange way, that I am a far more religious person than I thought I was," says Michael Landon, star and executive producer of NBC-TV's "Little House on the Prairie" (Wednesdays, 7-8 p.m.).

"I didn't have very good feelings about religion as the result of my early training. My parents were not of the same faith, and differed about which was best for me — so I didn't think of myself as a strongly religious person.

"And then I started writing television scripts."

Landon, who starred on "Bonanza" for 14 years, began writing scripts about five years ago, and now creates many of the "Little House on the Prairie" episodes, including "The Richest Man in Walnut Grove," the premiere of the series' second season, September 10.

"I have learned that I have a greater feeling about religion than I realized — it constantly comes out of the end of my pencil. I'm often amazed when I sit down and read one of my scripts.

"When I write them I just grab a pencil and a pad and turn my mind loose. I write like a madman — no stopping, no editing. I write for hours in longhand, and then have my secretary type them up for me.

"I'm often amazed at what I have written. It's a little like self analysis. I have discovered that I have some very strong feelings about God and His goodness to us, as well as our duties to Him."

Karen Grassle stars as Ma Ingalls.

'Gordon' depicts slave's life in revolutionary era

"I never understood what the Civil War was all about until I went to Virginia to make 'Gordon,'" says Northern J. Calloway, who stars in the title role of the first program in the "GO-USA" Bicentennial series, Sept. 6 (11:30-12 noon), on NBC.

Calloway, born, bred and educated in New York, had never been to the South before.

"We taped the show on a 600-acre plantation, and I realized for the first time what the Southerners had fought to keep. I could see why they felt they needed slaves and were willing to fight so hard. Thanks God that's all over now."

"Gordon" is set in the period of the Revolutionary War, but the issue of slavery versus independence was alive even then. Calloway plays a young literate slave who yearns for freedom. He decides to join the troops fighting the British for independence of the colonies as part of his own fight for personal freedom.

"This is one of the few scripts I've seen that allows a black actor to show many sides of a character," says Calloway. "It will be good for people to see how many slaves reacted to slavery. It was sad for me to see the slave quarters and the quarters of the overseers and masters. Going down there gave me a sense of history; I felt I could see those battles take place that ended slavery."

"This script is honest; it shows people in many dimensions. The master isn't all bad or good. He's a generous man, but self-centered and devoted to his own interests. There is a good balance. No one is one-sided."

Networks offer nine new comedy shows this year

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — About the only dramatic series that is trying a new area in the upcoming television season is NBC's The Invisible Man. But this, of course, comes from an old movie hit. David McCallum will play the scientist who discovers how to make himself invisible.

There are also nine new situation comedies on the three networks' schedules. Here, at last, we find a few with something new to offer. Perhaps the most exciting of all the new shows is When Things Were Rotten (ABC), which is Mel Brooks' crazy version of the Robin Hood legend.

Another comedy with

promise is a new one from Jimmie Komack, who gave us Chico and the Man last season. This year, it's Welctme Back, Kotter (ABC), with Gabriel Kaplan as a teacher in a tough Brooklyn area.

One that might be different, if the network lets it alone, is Fay. This has Lee Grant as a divorcee, and the premise is for her to face reality. The problem is that it may be too real and NBC could be watering it down. We'll have to wait and see how much survives.

Ethnic humor continues to be big. Two new comedies focus on Italian-American humor. One is NBC's The Montefuscos, with Joe Sirola heading a large clan, full of love and wit. The other is CBS' Joe and Sons, which has Richard Castellano as an Italian-American father bringing up two teen-age sons alone.

Among the other comedies coming are Phyllis, which has Cloris Leachman playing the same character she has played on The Mary Tyler Moore Show (CBS); Doc, with Varnard Hughes as a veteran doctor practicing in a big city (CBS); and Big Eddie, with Sheldon Leonard and Sheree North as a gambler and his wife raising a small grandchild (CBS).

Lastly, there is ABC's new comedy, On the Rocks. This is set in prison and it is based on an English prison series called Porridge. The men who did the English show, Dick Clement and Ian LaFrenais, have been imported to do the new U.S. version, too.

9:00 "CHICAGO SYNDICATE" Dennis O'Keefe, Abbe Lane. The efforts of a young accountant to break up a crime syndicate using legitimate business fronts to cover nefarious activities. 8

"FOOTLIGHT PARADE" James Cagney, Joan Blondell. Musical comedy director tries to make a comeback in new venture, and finds someone is stealing his ideas as soon as he puts them in the show. 9

7:00 "FRONT PAGE STORY" Jack Hawkins, Eva Bartok. Twelve fateful hours in the life of a newspaper editor, including a murder, five young orphans and troubles with his wife. 44

7:45 "THANK YOUR LUCKY STARS" Eddie Cantor, Dennis Morgan. Cantor's double impersonates him as a producer of a benefit show to give beginners a chance. 9

8:00 "CAHILL, U.S. MARSHALL" J. Wayne. 4, 23

10:30 "SECRET PARTNER" Stewart Granger, Haya Harareet. Malignated by his wife and friend, a British executive finds that he must prove his innocence when he is blackmailed and accused of robbery. 9

"KANSAS CITY BOMBER" R. Welch, K. McCarthy. 23

Harriet Karr guest-starred as Fritzi Donnelly, a young lady who faced a controversial hysterectomy in Columbia Pictures Television's special two-hour pilot presentation of "Medical Story," which launched the new NBC anthology series Sept. 4. The film was based on the true experiences of Miss Karr, wife of executive producer Abby Mann, who wrote the script.

Kleiner not impressed by network's 'new' shows

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — In most arts, it is creativity that counts. Being new, different, original — those are the qualities that make for success.

But, judging by the '75-'76 TV schedule, television is the exception to the rule. If you want to call TV an art, then TV is the art where originality runs second to imitation.

There are 26 new programs on the ABC, CBS and NBC schedules for this fall. With a very few exceptions, they are all imitations of previous successes.

Producer George Schlatter took one look at the new season's entries and said, "It's one giant sleeping pill."

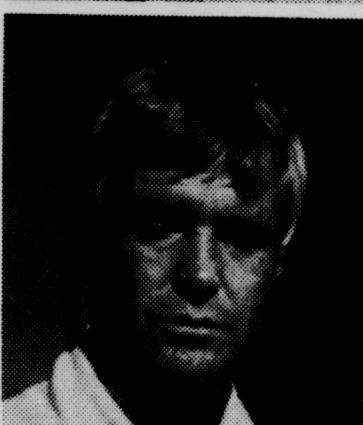

There may be some hits among the 26, but you will be hard put to distinguish the new hits from the old hits. This is particularly true in the realm of the cop shows; there are six new ones, and they are strictly variations on an old theme.

How do you create a new cop show? It's almost obvious if you put yourself in the shoes of the networks.

Private eyes have worked in the past, right? OK, let's get Tony Franciosa to play Matt Helm, because the Helm character has worked in the movies (ABC). One private eye is good, maybe two will be better. Let's put Robert Wagner and Eddie Albert together and call it Switch! (CBS).

Plainclothes cops have long been a standby, right? OK, how about a team of plainclothes cops? So Paul Michael Glaser and David Soul will be Starsky and Hutch (ABC). Or how about Jack Palance as Bronk, a police lieutenant in plain clothes (CBS).

If it works in books, maybe it will work on TV. Ellery Queen has worked before, why not now? So Jim Hutton will be STILL ANOTHER private eye series hits the TV airwaves this season when Eddie Albert and Robert Wagner (top) team up in CBS' Switch! George Peppard dons white tunic and stethoscope in NBC's Doctors' Hospital and comedienne Anne Meara appears in a different light—woman lawyer in CBS' Kate McShane.

Ellery Queen (NBC). Adam-12 and others were successful showing uniformed cops, why not try Lloyd Bridges as a cop on the beat. We'll call him Joe Forrester (NBC).

In the area of non-cop dramas, we find 10 new entries. Most of these are blatant copies of previous hits, with what passes as a new twist. NBC has The Family Hovak, about a small town minister and his family, set in the '30s and '40s. It has Glenn Ford and Julie Harris and lots of warmth and human kindness. What it is, basically, is The Waltons with a new twist — pappa is a minister.

9:00 "THE MOB" Broderick Crawford, Betty Buehler. A detective poses as a dock worker and gunman in an effort to get in with waterfront racketeers. He ends up shooting it out, and saving his fiancee who was kidnapped. 8

"CLAUDIA" Dorothy McGuire, Robert Young, Ina Claire. Delightful story of a young married couple and the courage they have when they learn that mother is dying. 9

7:00 "HOTEL BERLIN" Helmut Dantine, Faye Emerson, George Coulouris. In Hotel Berlin, the finest hotel in the Nazi capital in 1945, there is panic, for the Allied Army is ready for the final push into the Rhineland and into Berlin. 9

"DINO" Sal Mineo, Brian Keith, Susan Kohner. A 17-year-old delinquent is aided by a settlement house worker and a young girl. 44

8:00 "DIAMONDS ARE FOREVER" Sean Connery, as James Bond, pursuing an arch-villain who plans to conquer the world using a space satellite armed with a laser beam. 8, 13

10:30 "AMOROUS ADVENTURES OF MOLL FLANDERS" Kim Novak, Richard Johnson. In the 18th Century in England, a beautiful young orphan finds herself pursued by every man who meets her. Robbed of her virtue, left a penniless widow and thrown into jail for thieving, the path of true love to her highwayman is strewn with obstacles. 9

"THE TAMING OF THE SHREW" E. Taylor, R. Burton. 23

1:30 "ANGELS WITH DIRTY FACES" James Cagney, Humphrey Bogart. Two products of the city's worst slums return as grown men. One with a dream for the future, to battle against crime and a fate that was almost his. The other, with his future behind him, seeks vengeance on the world. 9

The business side of the news

Bait shop to new location

Irene Hays is pictured in front of the newly opened Bunny's Bait Shop at 500 E. River Road. The business was moved to the new location from 815 Washington Ave., where legal troubles with zoning were proving difficult for Mrs. Hays and her husband, Raymond. The new quarters are more spacious. The shop features a full line of bait and tackle as well as hunting and fishing licenses. (Telegraph Photo)

Fewer hens, laying at record rate

CHICAGO (AP) — There are fewer hens laying eggs in this country, but those that are seem to be enjoying it more, according to a recent report in Prairie Farmer.

The magazine says the numbers of laying hens in the U.S. are at their lowest level in many years. But those that are laying eggs, are doing so in record-breaking numbers. Ralph Baker, Ohio State University economist, says hens are producing about one egg more per hen per month. This trend has been going on for the past five years. The increase amounts to an additional 3.4 eggs per hundred hens per month, since 1970.

Why are the nation's hens laying more eggs now than a few years ago? Baker thinks a major reason is that they're generally healthier than they were a few years ago.

Who can predict what public wants?

Auto prophets make auto profits

DETROIT — (LENS) — Strangely enough, it was Chrysler, frequently criticised for weak management, that laid down the rules for the January and February sales rebate campaigns aimed at boosting flagging sales. And seemed to get the best of them.

Its rebates were planned to inflict maximum pain on its competitors.

Its success can be measured by its 2 per cent increase, to over 17 per cent, in market share during the campaign. It also claims it had an exceptionally high level of GM and Ford trade-ins.

A typical offer was to give an extra $100 for a trade-in Ford or GM car. Chrysler rebated a different car each week. So you knew if you wanted a cheap Plymouth, for instance, the only week to get it.

Ford went too far on its more hastily planned rebates. And, of course, profits suffered all round. The artificial boost in sales from an annual rate of 7 million cars at the end of 1974 to a rate of over 9 million cars must have taken some sales out of future months. But the campaigns had a justification: Confidence had reached such a low ebb that customers were not even entering the showrooms, and something had to be done to give the dealer a chance to clinch a sale. The campaign saved many dealers from bankruptcy.

Attempts to predict sales by asking the public what they intend to buy have proved a disaster. But the Survey Research Center of Michigan University puts people on the couch, and explores their in-depth attitudes to economic trends — which affects what they are thinking about cars.

When President Ford was saying there was no recession last autumn, consumers already "knew", according to the Michigan people, that there was one, and his statement contributed to their growing disbelief that the government could handle the economy. If the public feels, even wrongly, that recession exists, they may well create one by postponing (latest indicators) at first helped car sales. Consumers felt during 1972 and 1973 that they should buy before prices rose. But the advance purchases cut into 1974 and 1975 demand. And when fears moved last year from inflation to recession, heavy purchases like motor cars.

The gathering storm of falling confidence (which may now be lifting, or at least not worsening, according to the people delayed rather than advanced buying. Hence the sudden pile-up of 1.7 million unsold cars.

For the car industry, getting out of the rut is chiefly a matter of economic recovery. There is no evidence that Americans will give up their cars. Public transport is hard pressed for cash just to keep its present services going, let alone revolutionize it.

The main question therefore is what kind of cars people will buy. There are certainly dangers in GM's gamble on making everything smaller. Buyers' support has been swinging drunkenly between small and large cars; when uncertainty over fuel supplies and prices has evaporated, it may settle down again on the side of bigness.

Although there is an inverted snob appeal in small cars, there will always be those who regard large size as a status symbol — and big cars are safer to drive. Besides, Americans do clutter their cars with luggage: last year they bought 0.7 million light trucks entirely for personal use.

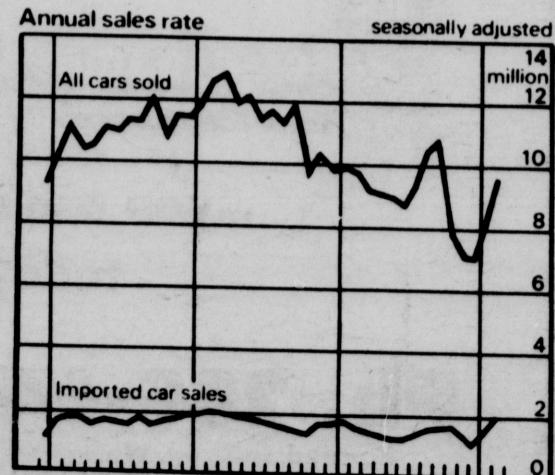

If the public does go for small cars, another problem will arise. High profit margins have traditionally been made on big cars and on optional extras. If the industry makes smaller, standard cars with less options, it will have to raise the profit margin on them, thus making them not so cheap after all. And once the public feels confident again it may want those options that have been scrapped. Yet standardization is the main hope for bringing costs down.

WOC sets the new NBC season

Channel 6 will introduce eight new series and one new element "McCoy" Tony Curtis in the "Mystery Movie" as the 1975-76 season premieres the week of September 7th. Twelve of the network series from the 1974-75 series will return this fall — some in new time periods.

"Iowa Football Highlights" will be presented each Monday night at 6:30 p.m. beginning with a preview of the season on September 8th. Coach Bob Cummings will recap each Saturday game on the Hawkeye's schedule.

Also on Monday, September 8th "The Invisible Man" premieres at 7 p.m. David McCallum is a scientist who discovers how to transform matter so that he can make himself invisible in this adaptation of the classic H.G. Wells plot. McCallum, was introduced to television audiences in "The Man From U.N.C.L.E."

Melinda Fee is cast as Kate Weston, the wife of the invisible Dr. Daniel.

The "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" premieres with Burt Reynolds starring in "White Lightning." The Monday movie will continue to present some of the top motion pictures and matching talent. "Dr. Zhivago," "1776," "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing," "Slaughterhouse-Five" and "The Owl and the Pussycat" are some of the features to be included in the NBC Monday and Saturday night movies series.

"Celebrity Sweepstakes" leads off the Tuesday evening programming at 6:30 p.m. and Tuesdays will note a change in time for "Movin' On" which will now be seen at 7 p.m., on Channel 6. It will be followed by "Police Story" at 8 p.m. This anthology series which focuses on various aspects of a metropolitan police department is written by Joseph Wambaugh and is now in its third season.

"Joe Forrester" is a new Tuesday night series at 9 p.m. Lloyd Bridges stars as the veteran policeman who leaves a topflight squad to return to walking the beat he once had. The script has been developed from a segment of "Police Story."

"Wild Kingdom," the program which takes armchair explorers to all parts of the world with zoologist Marlin Perkins, will now lead off the Wednesday night programming at 6:30 p.m. New studies on baboons, musk oxen, sharks and penguins will be among programs presented. A special Bi-Centennial program on America's Wildlife Heritage will also be seen this season.

Wednesday's schedule will see the return of the Ingalls family and their "Little House on the Prairie," Michael Landon, and Karen Grassle guide a pioneer family in many of the episodes written and directed by Landon himself.

"Doctor's Hospital," a new series which stars George Peppard as the head of neurological surgery who becomes involved in the lives of his patients, will premiere on Wednesday, September 10, at 8 p.m. on WOC-TV. The series will also star Zohra Lampert, who won a Emmy last season for her performance in a "Kojak" program, and Victory Campos as the top resident.

WOC-TV will present "The Bold Ones" each Wednesday at 9 p.m., featuring segments of "The Doctors," "The Lawyers," "The Senator," "The Protectors" and "Sarge." Stars include E. G. Marshall, David Hartman, Burl Ives, Joseph Campenella, Hal Holbrook, Leslie Nielsen and George Kennedy.

Four new programs will debut on Thursday, September 11 in the NBC-WOC schedule following "That Good Ole Nashville Music" which will continue in its current 6:30 p.m., time period.

At 7 p.m. on Thursday, the Channel 6 audience will meet the middle-class, Italian-American Montefusco family at their Sunday dinner. Joe Sirola and Naomi Stevens star as Tony and Rose, parents of a large and fun-loving brood.

Sirola co-starred as Dominick with Bill Bixby in the NBC series, "The Magician" presented several seasons ago.

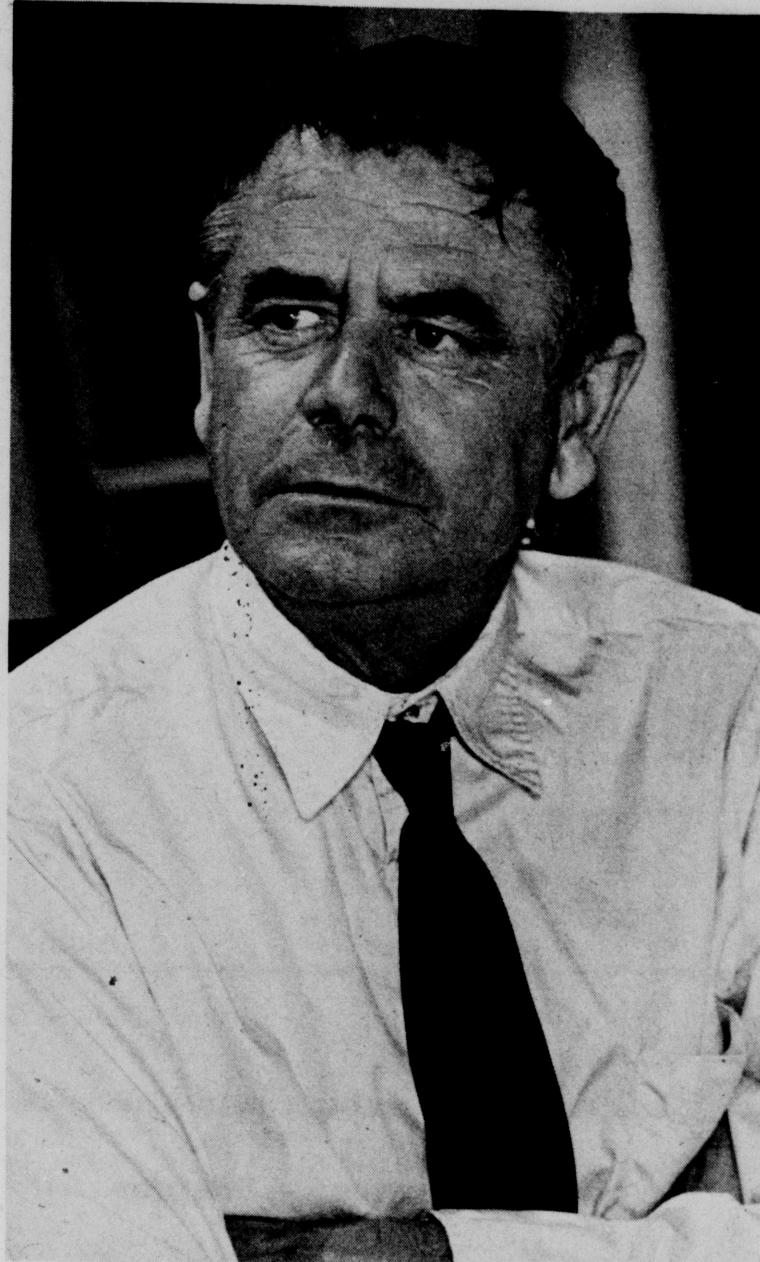

When "Fay," starring Lee Grant, premieres Thursday at 7:30 p.m., you'll find Joe Silver as her recently-divorced husband, Jack. This comedy series is about a woman in her 40's who tries to rebuild a life for herself following a 20-year marriage.

"Ellery Queen" follows "Fay" at 8 p.m. Jim Hutton stars as the famous Ellery and David Wayne has the role of his father, Inspector Queen. They work together as crime-solvers.

"Medical Story," Thursdays at 9 p.m., stars Vince Edwards as a gynecologist and Diane Baker as a pediatrician. This series will present a view of today's medicine and today's patients.

The WOC-NBC Friday schedule remains the same for this coming season with each program continuing in its regular spot. Starting with the "Hollywood Squares" game at 6:30 p.m., followed by "Sanford and Son" starring Redd Foxx and Demond Wilson. The season premiere will feature Joe Louis, Merv Griffin, Steve Lawrence and Edydie Gorme in cameo roles.

"Chico and the Man" will re-

Glenn Ford stars in new series "The Family Holvak."

tain their 7:30 position as series stars Jack Albertson and Freddie Prinze begin their second season. Rich Little guests in the September 12th episode which introduces some new characters in the neighborhood.

James Garner continues his adventurous assignments in "The Rockford Files" at 8 p.m., Fridays and Angie Dickinson faces a gambling ring of counterfeiters in the season premiere of "Police Woman" at 9 p.m. Among the guests on this program are Robert Goulet and Roddy McDowall.

"Petrocelli" leads off the Saturday night programming at 6 p.m., with Barry Newman returning for his second season of practicing law.

"Emergency," now in its fifth season, stars Randolph Mantooth, Kevin Tighe, Robert Fuller, Julie London and Bobby Troup as the members of the paramedics team. It continues to be presented at 7 p.m.

"NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" premieres at 8 p.m. on September 13 with "The Last of Sheila" starring a list of stars, listed in alphabetical order. Playing in a deadly game of "whodunit" will be Richard Benjamin, Dyan Cannon, James Coburn, Joan Hackett, James Mason, Ian McShane, Raquel Welch, Yvonne Romaine, Pierro Rosso and Sege Siton. And, Bette Midler, will sing the theme song — "Friends."

"Meet the Press" at 11:30 a.m., is a continuing favorite with viewers and will precede the Sunday afternoon NFL Football games which will premiere on Sunday, September 21.

"The Wonderful World of Disney" moves into an earlier 6 to 7 p.m. time period and will present a two-part program "The Boy Who Talked to Badgers," on September 14th and 21st.

When "The Family Holvak" presents its second season program, Glenn Ford and Julie Harris will be joined by David Carradine as guest. Their son, Lance Kerwin as Ramey, will play an important role in the family relationship of a stubborn country preacher in the South who struggles with life in impoverished surroundings. The time is the late 1930-40 when many families faced such conditions little known to young people today.

Peter Falk as "Columbo" leads off the first of the new season's "NBC Sunday Mystery Movies." In "Forgotten Lady," Sunday, September 14th at 8 p.m., he meets Janet Leigh as an ex-dancer-movie queen who yearns to return to the glitter of show biz. She is so intense about it that she plans a way to get money from her husband, who is "dead-set" against her career.

Among the stars set for this premiere program are John Payne, Maurice Evans and Sam Jaffe as the wealthy doctor-husband.

"The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" continues in its 10:30 — Midnight time and on Monday through Thursday Tom Snyder brings out his controversial guests before the NBC cameras to discuss subjects permissible at that late hour. On Fridays, Helen Reddy heads the list of talented contemporaries who shine in popular music world of today on "The Midnight Special," 12 midnight to 1:30 a.m.

NBC will have an outstanding roster of specials this season. Works of American writers — James Michener, Carl Sandburg, plus England's Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, John Osborne and George Bernard Shaw will be represented and some of the top personalities in the theatre will be the headliners.

Ann-Margret, Raymond Burr, Bob Hope, Rich Little, Dean Martin, McLean Stevenson, Barbara Walters and John Wayne . . . plus Richard Chamberlain, Sir Alex Guinness, Jack Lemmon — just to name a few.

Included in this lineup of major specials will be Michener's "The Americans," starring Sarah Miles; "Sherlock Holmes" with Robert Shaw as the super sleuth; "The Entertainer," starring Jack Lemmon, Ray Bolger and Sada Thompson; "Caesar and Cleopatra," starring Sir Alec Guinness and Genevieve Bujold in the Shaw play.

Miss America chosen this week

The entertaining and exciting search for Miss America of 1976, who will reign during America's Bicentennial year, will be the highlight of the 55th annual Miss America Pageant, to be colorcast live from Atlantic City, N.J., Sept. 6, 9 to 11 p.m., on the NBC.

"Travelin' Freedom's Road" is the musical Bicentennial theme of this special event, which will have Bert Parks as master of ceremonies (his 21st consecutive year), and Phyllis George, Miss America of 1971, and Debbie Ward, Miss Louisiana of 1973, as co-hosts.

Also performing as well as crowning her successor will be Shirley Cothran, Miss America of 1975. She will be joined by her companions on the 1975 Miss America USO tour, featured singer Jim Wilkins and the Miss America dancers.

The two-hour special will open with the entire cast, including the 50 state representatives, participating in the theme song, "Travelin' Freedom's Road," featuring original words and music by music director Glenn Osser and his wife, Edna.

The traditional parade of states will follow. Instead of introducing the state representatives alphabetically as in previous years, the girls will appear in the order of their state's entrance into the Union. This will be followed by Shirley Cothran returning to take another walk down the Convention Hall runway as Bert sings "Look at Her."

The announcement of the 10 semi-finalists, as selected by the judges after the competition of all the state representatives during three previous preliminary nights, will signify the start of the new rounds of judging. Only the 10 will compete before the national television audience in the three categories — Evening Gown, Talent and Swimsuit.

A salute to America's indigenous music, "The Jazz Story," will be performed by the entire cast to introduce the Evening Gown event. "The Wizard Revisited" production number, combining the music of the classic film, "The Wizard of Oz," with the new Broadway version, "The Wiz," will be performed by Wilkins and the dancers. It will introduce the Talent competition.

A salute to the musical contributions made by George M. Cohan, the "Born on the Fourth of July" production with the entire cast joining in, will precede the Swimsuit event.

Debbie Ward will sing "Freedom," from the Broadway musical hit, "Shenandoah," with Shirley playing the flute and the dancers participating.

Then, Shirley and the six 1974 state queens — Rhonda Pope (Arkansas), Lucianne Buchanan (California), Karen Smith (Kansas), Kristen Krull (New York), Susan Griffin (North Carolina) and Cheryl

Johnson (Wyoming) — will recreate the "Show Biz" number from their recently concluded 22-day USO tour of United States bases in the Mediterranean area.

After Bert sings "Miss America You're Beautiful" to Shirley, the 10 semi-finalists will return to center stage while the judges' decisions are announced for fourth runner-up ($2,000 award), third runner-up ($3,000 award), second runner-up ($5,000 award) and first runner-up ($10,000 award).

With the six remaining semi-finalists on stage, Parks will disclose which one was chosen as Miss America of 1976 and the recipient of the $15,000 scholarship award.

The new titleholder will be crowned by her predecessor and then take her Coronation Walk down the 130-foot runway as Bert sings the traditional "There She Is ... Miss America."

The NBC-TV colorcast will have Albert A. Marks as executive producer, John L. Koushouris as producer, Dave Wilson as director and Joseph Scher as the writer. It will be staged and choreographed by Peter Gennaro. The musical production numbers will be produced and directed by George Cavalier.

AUTHENTIC REPLICA OF THE AMERICAN LIBERTY BELL!

Come to First Federal Savings and Loan Association Mon., Sept. 8th through Sat., Sept. 13th, to see this handsome, authentic reproduction of the American Liberty Bell. This beautiful replica, produced at 1/4th the original scale for America's Bicentennial by Schulmerich Carillons is 3 feet in circumference around the lip and 12 inches in diameter. Every detail of the original has been faithfully maintained, the nicked edges, foundry marks, misspelling of the Bell's inscription and even the famous crack. The Bell is mounted on a beautiful mahogany base and pedestal on which appears a plaque with a portrait of George Washington. Overall height of bell, base and pedestal is 58 inches.

The American Liberty Bell will be on display at First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Dixon Monday thru Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Friday 8:30 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. and Saturday 8:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.
